Cauvery: K'taka to move SC, file review plea before CWMA

Authority upholds CWRC's directive to release 3,000 cusecs of water to TN

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

THE State Government has decided to approach the Supreme Court and also file a review petition before the Cauvery Water Management Authority (CWMA) against its directive to release 3,000 cusecs of water to Tamil Nadu till October 30. On Friday, the CWMA upheld the Cauvery Water Regulation Committee's (CWRC) directive to the State to release water to TN.

Speaking to reporters after holding a meeting with legal experts, including retired judges of the Supreme Court, Chief Minister Siddaramaiah said Karnataka is not in a position to release water to TN and it will be explained. If needed, a special session of the legislative assembly will be called to discuss the issue. "If we do not follow the order purposely, only then it will amount to contempt of court," he added.

At the CWMA meeting in Delhi, Additional Chief Secretary (Water Resources) Rakesh Singh appealed to the Authority to consider the prevailing storage in the four reservoirs of Karnataka which is insufficient even for irrigation and drinking purposes. The State also appealed for a review of the directive of CWRC to release 3,000 cusecs of water to TN from September 29 for 15 days.

Tamil Nadu insisted on releasing 12,500 cusecs, including a backlog of 12.5 tmcft. After detailed deliberations, the CWMA directed to make good the shortfall of earlier directives and endorsed the CWRC directive to release 3,000 cusecs till October 15.

Soon after the CWMA's directive, Siddaramaiah said that under normal circumstances, Karnataka has to release 177.25 tmcft of water in a year. "We need 284.85 tmcft of water. The State received poor rainfall in August. The situation remains the same even this month. Tamil Nadu received rains in September. So far, 43 tmcft of water has flowed to TN," Siddaramaiah said. P4

Bandh total, peaceful in Cauvery basin dists

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

THE Karnataka bandh called by Kannada organisations on Friday to protest against the release of Cauvery water to Tamil Nadu was successful and peaceful in the Cauvery basin districts, while it evoked a mixed response in other districts.

The Federation of Karnataka Chambers of Commerce and Industries stated that 70% of its members across Karnataka supported the bandh and noted that the loss to state exchequer was around Rs 400 crore by way of taxes.

Normal life was paralysed in Bengaluru, which witnessed bandh for the second time this week. Markets, shops, malls, hotels, theatres and other commercial establishments remained closed in the city. KSRTC and BMTC operated their services as usual, but the buses were not crowded. Except for some private vehicles, there were hardly any cabs and autos on the road. Major bus stations such as Kempegowda Bus Terminal wore a near-deserted look. The police detained 12 Kannada activists, who tried to enter the Kempegowda International Airport.

The police took 785 activists into preventive custody and did not allow them to take out a procession from Town Hall to Freedom Park. Leaders of Karnataka Rakshana Vedike and other Kannada outfits were picked up from different locations before they reached Town Hall and were taken to Freedom Park.

Vatal Nagaraj, the president of 'Kannada Okkoota', which had called for the bandh, was also detained. Clad in a burqa, Nagaraj criticised the police action and slammed the State Government for making Karnataka a "police state".

Kannada film fraternity also joined the protest under the leadership of senior actor Shivarajkumar. P4

Don't tinker with consent age, amend POCSO Act: Panel

SHRUTI KAKKAR @New Delhi

THE Law Commission of India on Friday advised the government not to reduce the existing age of consent from 18 to 16 years under the Protection of Children from Sexual Offences (POCSO) Act, 2012, saying else it could provide a safe harbour to coerce minors into subjugation, marital rape and other forms of abuse, including trafficking.

The Act criminalises all sexual activity for those under the age of 18 regardless of mutual consent. To address the problem, the panel suggested giving limited discretion on sentencing to special courts in cases of mutual consent. Carving out a limited judicial discretion at the stage of sentencing by a special court is more reasonable if consent is established, it said. "It has to be further ensured that such a discretionary power is provided in such a manner that it is well guided and insulated from any potential misuse as far as possible. In this context, as to when such a discretion will come into play and who will determine if at all it applies, becomes relevant," the Commission said in its Report No. 283 titled "Age of Consent under the Protection of Children from Sexual Offences Act, 2012."

Only a judicially trained mind can determine if the consent was indeed free from coercion, deception, fraud or influence, the report said.

The panel headed by retired Karnataka HC chief justice Ritu Raj Awasthi said lowering the age of consent would reduce the POCSO Act to a paper law. "The consent of a child is no consent and reading the same would be deeply problematic... The very real possibility of young girls being easily seduced in love traps and then sold off in trafficking cannot and should not be ignored. Any element of consent can be misused and may lead to children being at the mercy of adult abusers," it said.

'eFIR rollout to be in phases'

SHRUTI KAKKAR @New Delhi

The Law Commission of India on Friday recommended for putting in motion the process for registration of online FIRs (eFIRs) in a phased manner saying that clinging on to an archaic system of lodging FIRs does not augur well for criminal reforms.

It suggested eFIRs for all cognisable offences where the accused is not known. In case the accused is known, it recommended permission for eFIRs for cognisable offences where the punishment is up to 3 years in jail. This would not only protect the accused from arrest but also mandate the police to adhere to guidelines regarding arrest laid down in Supreme Court rulings, the panel said. In case its recommendations are effective, the Law Commission suggested that states can expand the list of offences for which e-FIR may be registered. However, permitting eFIRs in all cases now would cause extremely high investigative burden on police, the panel reasoned.

Canada figures in India-US talks

YESHI SELI @ New Delhi

EXTERNAL Affairs Minister S Jaishankar, who is on a five-day visit to the US till September 30, said on Friday that the diplomatic row with Canada came up during his discussions with his US counterpart Antony Blinken a day earlier.

On Thursday, Jaishankar had met Blinken and discussed a range of issues including the key outcomes of India's G20 presidency and the potential of the India-Middle East-Europe Economic Corridor. Blinken and Jaishankar "emphasised the continued importance of cooperation ahead of the upcoming 2+2 Dialogue, in particular in the areas of defence, space, and clean energy", US Department of Space spokesperson Matthew Miller said. The 2+2 dialogue is a format of meeting between the two countries' defence and foreign ministers.

While the official statement issued by the US Department of State was mum on the controversy over the killing of a Canada-based terrorist, Jaishankar later confirmed that the issue was indeed discussed with Blinken and US National Security Advisor Jake Sullivan during their meeting at the Foggy Bottom headquarters of the State Department.

Speaking at an event organised by Washington-based Hudson Institute, he said the US side shared its assessments on the whole situation and he explained at length about India's concerns. "Hopefully we both came out of the meeting better informed," he added.

Explaining India's concerns, he said Indian diplomats are unsafe in Canada. "They are publicly intimidated. And that has actually compelled me to temporarily suspend even visa operations in Canada," he added.

B'LURU TAKES PART IN STATE BANDH ACTIVELY, PEACEFULLY

1,500 protestors at Freedom Park; 785 held to avoid incidents; associations support the bandh

Police Commissioner B Dayananda, visits Town Hall during bandh

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

THE Friday's Karnataka Bandh called by pro-Kannada organisations against the release of the Cauvery water to the neighbouring state of Tamil Nadu was totally peaceful in the city, said police officials.

Speaking to media, Bengaluru City Police Commissioner B Dayananda said that the bandh was totally incident free. Around 785 protesters who tried to hold protest rallies and processions in various parts of the city were prevented by the police. They were released later. Around 1,500 protestors gathered at the Freedom Park and all of them left peacefully after the protest.

"The bandh was peaceful. No untoward incidents have been reported from any parts of the city. There were no cases of stone pelting, burning of tyres and forceful protests. No shops were forced to shut by any protester anywhere in the city. Even vehicular movement was normal. During the day, there was less vehicular movement and shops were partially open. No one was forced to impose the bandh anywhere in the city," the commissioner added.

Reacting to a question on the protests by film actors near the film chamber office at Shivananda Circle, the commissioner clarified that they had sought a prior permission, for the same.

NO TAKERS FOR KSRTC, BMTC BUSES

While the state-run KSRTC and BMTC buses were operational, there were hardly any passengers. KSRTC had lesser schedules operated on Friday, especially in the Cauvery heartland. BMTC operated only 3,587 instead of the regular 5,602 schedules due to the less crowd on Friday. Except for some private vehicles, there were hardly any cabs and autos to be seen in the city. Major bus stands and terminals including Kempegowda, Kalsipalaya, Yeshwathpur, Satellite Bus Stand, Shantinagar Bus Terminal also wore a deserted look.

DIP IN OPD PATIENTS AT HOSPITALS

There was a noticeable dip in the number of patients visiting government hospitals and private hospitals, as many people postpone their appointments due to the bandh on Friday.

44 FLIGHTS CANCELLED 'NOT DUE TO BANDH'

Around 44 flights were cancelled by various airlines on Friday till afternoon. However, the airport officials claim that it was due to various technical reasons, and not because of the bandh. On Friday 44 flights - 22 arrivals and 22 departures were cancelled due to recalibration, change in schedules and number of passengers. Pertaining to the protests held outside the terminal, the airport sources said that the police immediately reached the spot and took away all the agitators. "Special arrangements were made for the passengers who had arrived early, fearing untoward incidents due to the bandh. Airport cabs and bus services were functional to help passengers," a source from the airport said.

Markets and malls remain closed till dusk

VARIOUS traders' associations including Russell Market Traders Association, Brigade Shops and Establishment Association, Commercial Street Association and Karnataka Malls Association had shut their operations completely till 6pm in support of the bandh.

Idrees Chaudhary, General Secretary, Russell Market Traders Association, said, the traders have always supported pro-Kannada outfits when it comes to the interest of land, language and natural resources. "Trade activity usually start as early as 5:30 am at Russell Market everyday, however, due to the bandh call, we closed down operations from 6 am to 6 pm on Friday. One day business loss is nothing compared to the Cauvery struggle," said Chaudhary.

Similar scenes of empty roads and closed shops could be witnessed at Brigade Road and MG Road as well. "The city has a population of around 1.3 crore people and its daily drinking water needs have doubled since the year 2000. There is a drought situation, and dams that release water have very less water. Forget summer, we may have a huge water scarcity during winter itself, this year," said Suhail Yusuf, Secretary of Brigade Shops and Establishment Association.

Mayank Rohatgi, Secretary, Commercial Street Association, said no members in the association were forced to shut shops. It was all voluntary. "Some were also scared of their shops being attacked, and closed shops till 6 pm," said Rohatgi.

Film industry supports cause, 550 theatres shut across state

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @BENGALURU

MEMBERS of the Kannada film industry and theatres also extended their support to the and state-wide bandh. This move comes after they were accused of not participating in the Bengaluru bandh, on Tuesday.

Participating in the protest organised by Federation of Karnataka Film Chambers Of Commerce, actor Dr Shivarajkumar expressed unhappiness over the allegation against the industry for not supporting in the Cauvery struggle. He said, "The issue has always been there. Farmers are there on both sides and the state governments should sit across the table and find a solution."

Actor Upendra noted that the Cauvery issue has remained unsolved for the last several years. "Both the sides should take an initiative to maturely find a solution." Actor Pooja Gandhi said, the entire film industry will unite when it comes to the interests of land, language and natural resources.

Actors Shivarajkumar, Shruti, Sri Murali, and others during the protest

The federation president NM Suresh said that, when the film industry had decided to support, it also applied to theatres and hence theatres in Karnataka were closed. "To counter the fingers pointed at the Kannada cine industry, I organised this gathering in 48 hours. The message is clear that 'we stand by our farmers and their interest." said Suresh.

N Kumar, a theatre owner said, that a decision was taken on Thursday evening not to take any bookings for morning and matinee shows across the state, as Cauvery struggle cannot be measured monitarily. In all, 550 theaters were closed in different districts, taluks and hoblis. Actor Darshan Togudeepa, Shruthi, Srujan Lokesh, Srii Mularli, Duniya Vijay Vaishista Simha and others were present at Freedom Park to protest along with other Kannada actors.

Apologising to actor Siddharth, and expressing displeasure over disrupting the press conference on Thursday, Shivarajkumar said, "Such actions will only bring bad name to the Cauvery struggle."

EVENTS IN CITY CANCELLED FOR BANDH, LONG WEEKEND ADDS TO LOSSES

PURAN CHOUDHARY @Bengaluru

SEVERAL events in Bengaluru were cancelled on Friday as the city came to a standstill for Karnataka bandh. Small gatherings, music events, stand-up comedy shows and theatre shows were either postponed to next week or got cancelled.

An event scheduled at the Indian Music Experience Museum by Padma Shri Pandit Ritwik Sanyal got postponed to another date, as the museum remained closed in support of the state-wide bandh.

SPARSH Hospital had scheduled to organize a yoga session to create awareness of heart health, was cancelled because of the limited access to public transport. The event was to be held on the occasion of World Heart Day on Friday.

Inauguration of an Underground Film Club which was scheduled to be held in Indiranagar, was also postponed to end of October. Ladies Only, a film by Rebana Liz John was scheduled to be screened the Museum of Art and Photography (MAP) was also postponed to another date.

Organisers said that many of these events will either be rescheduled for mid-October or October end. Given the long weekend due to the bandh, many people are also travelling outside the city.

Not just events, but over 3,000 eateries, restaurants and bakeries were shut in Bengaluru to support the bandh, said members of the hotels and restaurants association. With most Friday night plans being interrupted by the bandh, restaurants, eateries, and breweries are also expected to face the impact. Many owners said that two bandhs in the same week has led to huge financial losses. Further, the long weekend until October 2 will only add to the losses as the customer footfall will decrease by 15-20 per cent.

Aditya Das, Chef at Gatsby Cocktails and Cuisines, told TNIE, "Reservations for the weekend are weak, however we have kept the operations running. The bandh will not affect the breweries and bars as they will be operational in the evening." An employee of nother restro-bar, Raahi said, "We knew that this long weekend along with the bandh will affect the business significantly, however, we hope to recover the losses over the next couple of weekends."

30TH September : Yesterday I remarked how scientists now believe that ninety-six percent of the universe is a complete mystery and only four percent operates according to the known laws of physics. My friends who are astronomers are very excited about this because there is work to keep them busy for years, finding all those answers to their many new questions.

ARIES (Mar 21 - Apr. 20)
Weather and other commitments permitting, this is still a superb time for rural excursions or trips to another part of the country. Happily, Mercury, ruler of short journeys, is still stirring you up, encouraging you to look further a field for your next bout of satisfaction.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 - May 21)
You may be squeezed between two conflicting trends; one a desire to get to grips with the facts, the other a realisation that the truth lies in your imagination rather than in the real world. Such a dilemma implies that extreme caution is the best policy.

GEMINI (May 22 - June 21)
For a short time mystery is in the air, and today's planetary picture could add a new twist. Your Mercurial talents are ideally suited to digging out the truth, and there seems little doubt that this will turn out to be much stranger than you ever imagined.

CANCER (June 22 - July 23)
Although there will be difficult times, partners will offer you succour and protection over the coming weeks. Today, though, a mystery will intensify, perhaps clouding your vision and obscuring the facts. Why, you ask yourself, can't people just get on with each other?

LEO (July 24 - Aug. 23)
You are supposed to be a generous partner, yet in the final analysis you're much too keen on your own ideas to really be able to agree or compromise with people who have opposing views. This stubborn attitude may be out of place today, so don't force issues which should be left well alone.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 - Sept. 23)
Perhaps it's just that you've been overworking but a long holiday is becoming an increasingly attractive proposition. Yet, even if you do get away, you will take your professional concerns with you. Perhaps you're just looking for a way out from emotional stress!

LIBRA (Sept. 24 - Oct. 23)
A challenging alignment from Venus to Mars encourages strange and little-known influences, which in turn stimulates your emotional desires but promotes caution. You would be advised to stand your ground, though - but never fight a battle you can't win.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 - Nov. 22)
Partners must, repeat must, be involved in your financial thinking, even though it may not be the easiest thing in the world to make yourself understood. Is someone now being deliberately obtuse? Or do they just lack your depth of wisdom and understanding?

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 - Dec. 22)
You may now be tiring of the endless opposition to your plans and ideas. But has it occurred to you that there may be a great deal of good, sound common-sense in what other people have to say? And that is precisely why you must avoid confrontation today and tomorrow.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23 - Jan. 20)
Mars is still challenging your sign, guaran-teeing lively times, even though you will have to put up with other people's unhelpful or demanding behaviour. Be sure to reach a compromise if this is the only way to gain accep-tance. You may be worried that someone is under-mining your interests, but don't jump to conclusions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 - Feb. 19)
Like your fellow air signs, the Librans and Geminians, you are enjoy-ing the benefits of a seem-ingly endless series of wonderful planetary influences. If events don't work out as planned, it is because you have seriously mishandled them. Make up for it now.

PISCES (Feb. 20 - Mar 20)
An agreement on a major domestic matter is about to be reached. You may have cause to breathe a sigh of relief, although you must understand that you still have another two months to sort out the consequences. Why not make a determined effort to get on with colleagues and everyone in authority?

- Centre can take control of dams if we don't give water, says CM

CHIEF Minister Siddaramaiah on Friday said the State Government agrees with farmers' view not to release water to TN, but that can amount to contempt of court and lead to dismissal of the government.

Explaining the government's predicament to members of the Karnataka Jalasamrakshana Samithi — a group of organisations, including farmers' associations, the CM said if water is not released to TN, the Centre can take control of the State's reservoirs.

Siddaramaiah said the problem arose because of the rain deficit in August. Even this month so far, the State has received poor rainfall. "We have raised this issue at the meetings of the Cauvery Water Management Authority (CWMA). There is no sufficient water in our dams in the Cauvery basin. We have also filed an application before the Supreme Court," the CM said.

The State needs 70 tmcft of water for irrigation, 30 tmcft for drinking purpose and 3 tmcft for industries. "In all, the State needs 106 tmcft. But we have only 50 tmcft of water. Our first priority is to meet the drinking water needs of the people," he said.

The farmers' delegation met the CM before his meeting with the legal experts to decide on the action to be taken in view of the CWMA's directive to the state to release 3,000 cusecs of water daily to TN till October 15.

The Samithi members urged the government to immediately stop releasing Cauvery water to TN. They appealed to the government to convene a special session of the State legislature to discuss the crisis and send a clear message to the Centre that it will not release water to TN till all stakeholders arrive at a consensus on a distress formula.

Earlier this week, the Bengaluru bandh called by the Samithi to protest against the release of Cauvery water to TN was near total.

Farmer leader Kurubur Shantakumar, former legislator, AAP state chief Mukyamantri Chandru and other leaders urged the CM to withdraw cases registered against members of various farmers' associations and Kannada outfits for taking part in protests to protect the State's interests.

The State should urge the Centre to constitute an independent committee of irrigation experts, representatives of farmers' associations and officials from the riparian States on the lines of the Election Commission of India (ECI) to resolve the Cauvery crisis, the Samithi stated in its letter submitted to the CM.

Mukhyamantri Chandru said the CWMA's judgment is unscientific.

MYSURU, Mandya and Chamarajanagar districts in the Old Mysuru region observed a total bandh. Barring an incident of a farmer attempting to commit suicide, the bandh was peaceful in Mysuru. Tourists were forced to stay indoors. BJP and Kannada activists took out massive processions in the city.

In Mandya district, many farmers were detained near Gejjalagere when they tried to stop the Vande Bharat Express train. MLA Darshan Puttannaiah, KRRS president Badagalapura Nagendra and other activists were detained when they tried to block the Bengaluru-Mysuru highway with cattle.

In the border district of Chamarajanagar, vehicles with Tamil Nadu and Karnataka registrations were stopped. Hundreds of Tamils joined the stir against Tamil Nadu.

Attempts to block the national highway were made in Ramanagara, but the police detained the agitators. Kannada activists held a "condolence" meeting in Gadag where they performed the "funeral rituals" of 28 MPs from Karnataka.

The bandh call evoked a good response in Tumakuru, Chikkamagaluru, Kolar and Chikkaballapur. It evoked a mixed response in Belagavi, Hassan and Davanagere.

In Kodagu, where the Cauvery originates, Dakshina Kannada, Shivamogga, Hubballi, Vijayapura and Bagalkot districts the bandh was limited to protests.

VATAL Nagaraj, a veteran Kannada activist and the man behind many bandhs in Karnataka, is known for his unique protests.

During Friday's Karnataka Bandh, the former MLA came out of his Dollars Colony residence wearing a burqa. "People may see it as a burqa or as the black robe of the 'Nyayadevathe' (woman of justice)," said the president of 'Kannada Okkoota', which had called for the bandh.

He also carried an empty pot as a mark of protest, expressing dismay that Karnataka is releasing Cauvery water to Tamil Nadu, even though state reservoirs are drying up.

Addressing a press conference later, he demanded Prime Minister Narendra Modi's intervention in the matter. He said the state government should call a special session and pass a resolution that it won't release water to the neighbouring state. Stating that the agitations would continue, he said a protest will be held at Kempegowda Bus Station on Saturday.

"We will take out a massive vehicle rally from Bengaluru to KRS Dam in Mandya on October 5, in which 20,000 two-wheelers and 2,000 four-wheelers will take part," he added.

Talk to alliance partner DMK to resolve row: Tejasvi to Cong govt

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

HITTING out at the Siddaramaiah government over its handling of the Cauvery dispute, Bengaluru South MP Tejasvi Surya on Friday suggested to the Congress government in the state to use its "friendship" with its I.N.D.I.A. bloc partner DMK to resolve the water-sharing issue.

Surya, who is also BJP Yuva Morcha president, said that the 25 BJP MPs from Karnataka, and the Union Government, have always stood with Karnataka on the Cauvery row.

"Congress and DMK are in 'I.N.D.I.A' alliance and hence Congressmen have the opportunity to communicate easily with Tamil Nadu leaders. Use your political friendship to resolve the issue and get permission for the Mekedatu balancing reservoir project. The names of Siddaramaiah and DK Shivakumar will be registered in history forever for solving the Cauvery problem. The BJP is with you if you initiate talks with TN CM MK Stalin," he told the Karnataka government. The MP, however, condemned the State Government for "failing to present the facts" before the Cauvery Water Management Authority (CWMA) resulting in Karnataka farmers facing difficulties. The Congress government has been hiding its failure and passing the buck on others, Surya alleged.

Surya further alleged that there was lack of coordination between CM Siddaramaiah and DyCM Shivakumar in their handling of the Cauvery issue. "While the advocates argued that there would be drinking water scarcity, even in Bengaluru, the government welcomed the authority's directive to release water to TN," Surya added.

"Karnataka was told to release 3,000 cusecs of water daily to TN on the day of Karnataka bandh, which the entire state and all parties should have opposed unanimously. The CM and DyCM, however, gave a statement that the order was in favour of Karnataka. Later, they said that they will move the Supreme Court," Surya said, adding that Siddaramaiah and Shivakumar had no clarity on the Cauvery issue.

The MP said that the BJP has extended full support to the Karnataka bandh.

"THE State has been ordered to release 123 tmcft of water. We have protested at the meetings of the Authority. We stated that there is no water in our dams. We have filed an application before the Supreme Court," the CM added. The CM said legal experts have suggested to the government to constitute a committee of experts not only for Cauvery but also for other water disputes. The committee should collect data on water-related issues and give suggestions to the legal team from time to time. "We are considering this and working on it," he added.

Former Chief Justice of India MN Venkatachalaiah, Justices Shivaraj Patil, V Gopala Gowda, RV Raveendran, P Vishwanath Shetty and AN Venugopala Gowda along with Advocate General Shashikiran Shetty and former advocates general BV Acharya, Madhusudan Nayak, Vijayshankar, Uday Holla, Prof Raviverma Kumar and Prabhulinga Navadagi attended the meeting.

Referring to the proposed Mekedatu project, the CM said the State will bring this to the notice of the Supreme Court. This project will not cause any harm to TN. Experts have suggested to the government to present this point more effectively. The proposed reservoir will have a capacity to store 67 tmcft of water, which can be used for drinking purpose and power generation. "In times of distress, we can release water to TN," he added.

MY TAKE

Traffic jams: Blaming roads for not knowing how to drive

NIRAD MUDUR
Deputy Resident Editor, Karnataka
niradgmudur@newindianexpress.com

ROAD congestion. Traffic jams. Chaos on roads. Traffic gridlock. These are common parlance among Bengalureans. These are attributed to poor road design, shoddy road works, incomplete projects left unattended... the list goes on and on. The blame is invariably heaped on the government departments, particularly the transport and the traffic police departments, besides the Bruhat Bengaluru Mahanagara Palike (BBMP), Bangalore Water Supply & Sewerage Board (BWSSB), the Bangalore Electricity Supply Company (BESCOM) — all picked for the choicest of criticisms for anything and everything going wrong on Bengaluru roads. It is never the fault of the motorists.

If the problem is scrutinized closely, one is bound to find that the main culprits in causing traffic jams are the motorists themselves — the very segment which criticizes the government for it.

Plain observation of how traffic moves and motorists' behaviour in the state capital of Bengaluru, could convince the observers about the role played by the motorists in causing traffic jams. And yet, the government agencies are blamed. The best and deserved description for Bengaluru motorists, is the popular Kannada saying: "Kuniyakke barallaandre nela donku" ("If you don't know how to dance, you blame the floor to be uneven").

Most motorists, despite being armed with legal driving licences, have no clue what driving is about, and that is the main cause for all the traffic woes in Bengaluru. The city, with a human population of about 1.2 crore, has 1,11,95,222 (almost 1.12 crore) vehicles. That is 36.67% of the total vehicle population of Karnataka (3,05,28,518) as of August 31, according to transport department data.

Driving in Bengaluru boils down to clash of egos rather than travelling from point A to B in a disciplined manner. It is all about "who is better?", "who reaches first?", "Who is the fastest?", or "How many vehicles are overtaken?" — a recipe for road rage, a contributor to traffic obstruction.

Driving is not merely about releasing the clutch while pressing the accelerator to get the desired result of the vehicle thrusting forward. It is not about how fast one can drive on the roads. Driving is about motorists ensuring zero-contribution to traffic jams while in control of their vehicles. It's about how lanes are used in a disciplined manner to allow faster vehicles to overtake from the left, while slower ones are to be overtaken from their right. It is not about parking a vehicle wherever space is available. It is about ensuring free passageways to ensure smoother flow of traffic. Driving is about patience while following the vehicle in front, not suddenly overtaking to be ahead of the queue to be the first to clear the 'green' signal at a junction.

Obtaining a driver's licence is not a grant of freedom (converted into a right) to floor the accelerator and forget that 'brakes' ever existed in the driving vocabulary and practice. There are no rights to create traffic jams, no freedom either. It is a duty to prevent one.

It is important to understand that the white/yellow lines drawn on the roads are not mere designs (it's definitely not 'rangoli') for regaling our visual senses, but to inform motorists in which lane they should be, and at what speed. Where they don't exist, fair road judgement is needed to remain safely in line of moving traffic.

On Wednesday, moderate rainfall in Mahadevapura zone was enough to cause heavy traffic jams due to slow-moving traffic on Outer Ring Road and Arterial Ring Road. Water-logging, processions heading for Ganesha immersions and a long weekend saw many heading out of town, adding to the traffic woes.

Like always, people cursed the government departments for not doing their job. A close look would have revealed who was at fault.

But if we have to resort to our pet habit of blaming government departments, it should be for turning a blind eye to motorists being the prime accused in contributing to traffic jams and gridlocks almost on a daily basis. They deserve blame for lack of strict enforcement and imposing steep penalties that can deter and turn the errant city motorists towards more disciplined ways of using the city roads.

Cloud seeding begins in Belagavi

Naushad Bijapur @ Belagavi:
To help farmers affected by drought in Belagavi district, Belagavi Sugars Private Ltd on Friday carried out cloud seeding operations. The 3-day operation was launched at Sambra airport in Belagavi under the supervision of PWD Minister Satish Jarkiholi, who runs the sugar factory. Satish said that it took him 20 days to obtain approval from the Union Government to go ahead with cloud seeding. On Friday, the operation was conducted in the skies of Gokak and Khanapur regions, and will be done in other parts of the district over the weekend. Cloud seeding would be held for three hours daily. Satish said it would be great if it rained in the dry areas of Belagavi district after cloud seeding. If successful, cloud seeding would be taken up in areas in the Cauvery basin like Madkeri and Hassan by Belagavi Sugars Private Ltd if approval is given by the government, he added. MLA Prakash Koliwad said the recent cloud seeding in Haveri district resulted in 5 to 30 mm rainfall. The aircraft is piloted by Captain Veerendra Singh and Captain Adarsh Pande. To tap the clouds at a lower height, CACL-2 iodide would be sprayed and for clouds in altitude 20,000ft and above, silver iodide would be sprayed.

EVEN AFTER PLANTING SAPLINGS, FOREST COVER NOT UP: SIDDU

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

CHIEF Minister Siddaramaiah on Friday said the forest cover in Karnataka is a mere 20%. Even as forest officials tried to correct him that it was 22%, he said, "My information tells me it is 20%. But if you say 22%, fine. But it is still less than the norm of 33%."

He said that every year, crores of saplings are planted and this year's target is five crore, but still the forest cover has not increased. He told department officials and various organisations to work towards increasing the forest cover.

Karnataka boasts of being number one in elephant population and number 2 in tiger population, but man-animal conflicts too are on the rise. The forest department should ensure that there is sufficient fodder and water to keep wild animals inside the forests, he said. He assured the officials that he will look into the proposal to allocate an additional Rs 100 crore to put up rail barricades to stop elephants from straying out of forests. Just like the compensation given immediately for the loss of life, crop loss cases too should be considered immediately, he said.

Speaking on the sidelines of handing over CM medals to 50 forest staffers (retired and serving) for 2019-20 and 2020-21, he said the medals should be given every year. Forest Minister Eshwar Khandre said the Forest Survey of India report showed Bengaluru as the third largest city India with a forest area of 89 sqkm, which is 6.81%. But Bengaluru's tree cover has reduced by 5 sqkm in the last 10 years.

61-yr-old watcher gets award

MM Kusanur, a 61-year old retired forest watcher from Hangal range in Haveri, was one of the 50 medal recipients. He had joined the service in 1986. Recollecting a 2003 incident, he said his face was smashed and he was critically injured when he was fighting sandalwood poachers. He fought them off till the other staffers and seniors came to the spot. He recollected that he was in a coma for seven days and was in hospital for two months.

Khandre, DKS discuss reservoirs, irrigation

Forest, Environment and Ecology Minister Eshwar Khandre on Friday held a meeting with Deputy Chief Minister and Water Resources Minister DK Shivakumar to discuss issues related to reservoirs and irrigation. At the meeting, Khandre informed Shivakumar that water from the Godavari should be utilised adequately in the Kalyana Karnataka region. He also informed the DyCM that work on the Karanji reservoir has been completed and the irrigated area in Bhalki taluk had also increased. He also asked Shivakumar to look into the proposal of clearing the implementation of the Mekhar irrigation project, as it was demanded by farmers who had lost their land many years ago for the Karnja project, but had not received compensation. He also consulted on the completion of various irrigation projects.

Doctors point to work culture, lifestyle as major risk factors

PURAN CHOUDHARY @ Bengaluru

WORLD HEART DAY

ON World Heart Day, cardiologists point to the uniqueness of Bengaluru's population and its work culture as reasons for the large number of heart ailment cases.

Bengaluru, the IT capital of India, is noticing increased cardiac disorders, also because of the unusual working style of its professionals. "People in the IT sector are an unusual group, who work 14 hours a day in one sitting and party over the weekend, which becomes a big risk factor," Dr Kiron Varghese, Chief Interventional Cardiologist at St John's Hospital, said.

He said the youngsters are reluctant to undergo checkups and are unwilling to start medicines if they are diagnosed with minor issues. He recalled patients saying they are "too young to start treatment now", as one of the many reasons for sudden heart failures. Cardiologists said heart attacks in youngsters, aged 20-30, are getting more common, due to smoking and pollution.

Doctors emphasised the need to adopt an active lifestyle and get regular checkups. Dr Varghese said, "Indians as an ethnic group are at maximum risk of heart attacks. Compared to the West, the age difference between individuals prone to attacks is 10 years." He said apart from being diabetic and obese, cholesterol is a factor too.

Cautioning individuals working in the IT sector, Dr Varghese said that a sedentary lifestyle, smoking and working for long hours over the week will aggravate the problem.

Dr DS Chadha, Senior Consultant and Interventional Cardiologist, Manipal Hospitals, said, "Environment, traffic, pollution and living conditions need to be taken into account for poor heart health. Though genetic and family history have a role to play, one cannot negate lifestyle." He added that more patients are being diagnosed with Coronary Artery Disease, in which plaque builds up in the wall of the arteries. Doctors recommend regular health screening for all age groups, along with avoiding smoking, managing stress, and taking steps to prevent any infection. Experts suggest sensitising the masses to risk factors and preventive measures.

BENGALURU-based Nsure energy, ultimately generating abundant opportunities for individuals. One of its ambitious endeavours is the creation of India's largest research park in energy storage . Spanning nine acres, this park will serve as an open-source laboratory, with Rs 95 crore investment allocated for Research & Development.

"We intend to allocate Rs 25 crore annually to accommodate 130 scientists from across the world. There is currently no dedicated open-source research center in India; the primary options are limited to prestigious institutions like IITs or renowned engineering universities. However, the absence of admission to such establishments should not undermine an individual's intellectual capabilities. The envisioned park will provide a fitting platform for those who do not have access to these institutions, bridging the existing gap," explains Chandrakanth Ramalingam, Director of Nsure Energy Bengaluru.

According to him, while the primary focus will be on research, it will also synergise with the company's core business of energy storage, particularly in the field of Lithium Battery manufacturing.

Nsure energy is concurrently in the process of establishing a Giga-Watt scale capacity for Advanced Lithium Cell Chemistry manufacturing in Malur. Nsure has entered into a Technology partnership collaboration agreement with a consortium of leading US-based companies. The firm has also signed agreements with ARCI-DST, Government of India, aimed at establishing state-of-the-art RD&E facilities, a pilot manufacturing plant, and an advanced materials research facility to support the indigenisation of the entire ecosystem.

"Currently, India imports Lithium cells worth Rs 45,000 crore annually. In Phase 1, our production will contribute Rs 2,000 crore per year, eventually reaching up to Rs 18,000 crore per year worth of Lithium cells. We are sourcing the required materials from 11 countries. The unit is scheduled to commence operations within the next 12 months, with an investment of Rs 1,050 crore," elaborates Chandrakanth Ramalingam.

Will M Chinnaswamy see Prasanna, Chandra, Vishy stands?

BANSY KALAPPA @ Bengaluru

BS Chandrashekar (L), EAS Prasanna (C) and Gundappa Vishwanath

SPINNERS BS Chandrashekar and EAS Prasanna and batsman Gundappa Vishwanath enthralled the world with their version of cricket in the seventies and former MLC Mohan Kondajji has said he will take it up as a campaign to name the stands at the M Chinnaswamy Stadium after the three greats who still inspire reverence.

Responding to Kondajji's Facebook post, former minister and BJP MLA Suresh Kumar said, "Sure, much needed. I will do my part." Historian Ramachandra Guha has on record made this proposal and said he spoke to Brijesh Patel and BCCI Chairman Roger Binny about naming the stands after the three great cricketers. He has said it was due to Vishwanath's batting that Karnataka defeated strong teams -- Delhi and Bombay -- to lift the Ranji Trophy five decades ago.

Kondajji, a filmmaker, said he will take it up with the state government especially with Chief Minister Siddaramaiah, who remains a great cricket lover and has been a regular visitor to the Karnataka State Cricket Association (KSCA). Kondajji reminded that another chief minister S Nijalingappa was also an ardent lover of the game and was himself a cricketer. At the stadium, there is a room in memory of Nijalingappa because it was during his time that the land for the KSCA stadium was leased from the defence authorities. Kondajji said, "Cricket lovers will point out that in Mumbai which is the home of Wankhede Stadium, the gates are named after greats -- Vijay Merchant, Vinoo Mankad, Sunil Gavaskar, Sachin Tendulkar. At the famous Ferozshah Kotla Stadium in Delhi, Mohinder Amarnath, Bishen Singh Bedi and Virender Sehwag are remembered. Internationally too a few months ago, the Sydney Cricket Stadium named a gate after the West Indies batsman Brian Lara and our own Sachin Tendulkar." Cricket writer Joseph Hoover said, "These three are the greatest cricketers Karnataka has produced and they deserve to have the stands named after them."

Ruling party whip in the Council Prakash Rathod, who himself is a former Ranji star and represented India Under-19 team, said, "We will take this proposal forward."

Nara Lokesh may be grilled by AP-CID

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Vijayawada

THE Andhra Pradesh Crime Investigation Department (AP-CID) is likely to serve notices to TDP national general secretary Nara Lokesh for questioning him in the Amaravati inner ring road case. Lokesh has been added an an accused in the case recently.

Following the CID naming him as an accused in the case, Lokesh filed an anticipatory bail plea which was heard in the high court Friday.

Appearing on behalf of the CID, advocate general S Sriram said he was informed by the investigating agency that Lokesh would be served notice under 41(A) of CrPC for appearance to question him in the case.

Justice K Suresh Reddy said the submission would be recorded and would dispose of the petition as there is no immediate possibility of the investigating agency arresting the petitioner. Justice Suresh Reddy said the CID has to take permission from the court under 41(A)(4) of CrPC if it wants to arrest the petitioner.

Responding, Lokesh's counsel Dammalapati Srinivas said there is a possibility that the CID might arrest the petitioner even if he cooperates during the questioning with a malafide intention. Srinivas further informed the court that the investigation agency is levelling allegations against the petitioner without proper evidences. Srinivas maintained that the CID might serve notice just one day in advance and prayed that the court passes orders to the investigating agency to give some time for the petitioner to appear after serving the notice.

Madras HC upholds conviction of over 200 officials in '92 rape case

Convicts raped 18 tribal women in TN's Vachathi village during raid

R SIVAKUMAR @ Chennai

THE Madras High Court on Friday upheld a trial court order convicting forest, revenue and police department officials for raping 18 tribal women and ransacking tribal habitations at Vachathi village in Dharmapuri district during a raid for smuggled sandalwood in 1992.

Justice P Velmurugan also ordered the state to pay Rs 10 lakh compensation to each of the rape victims, give suitable government jobs to them or their family members, and take measures to enhance the livelihood of Vachathi villagers.

The court also rapped the then state government (led by AIADMK) for failing to act on complaints of brutality and shielding errant officials. Dismissing all the appeals filed by convicted officials, the court said "the prosecution has proved the charges through evidence of witnesses and documents."

The appeals before the HC were filed by 215 of 269 accused officials against a 2011 order of the principal sessions court of Dharmapuri that convicted them for the crimes. The remaining accused had died during the course of trial.

Faulting the then Dharmapuri collector and district forest officer for not acting on complaints, the judge said 50% of the Rs 10 lakh to be paid to each victim should be recovered from the officials convicted for rape of 18 tribal women.

Referring to the fact that the then state government had not taken any action on the matter and the FIR was registered only in 1995 after the HC ordered a CBI probe, the judge said, "The authorities have not heard the voice of the innocent people and even the then government has not paid any attention. To safeguard officials, no action was taken. Only innocent villagers were targeted."

The judge added, "Unfortunately, the then government failed to protect the tribal women and only safeguarded the errant officials. It also failed to find out the real sandalwood smugglers."

Judgment has erased our suffering: villagers

Dharmapuri: Vachathi erupted in joy after the Madras High Court on Friday dismissed the appeal of all 269 accused against their conviction by the Principal Sessions court in 2011. In a landmark judgment, in September 2011, the Principal Session court pronounced all the accused, including 126 Forest, 84 Police and 5 Revenue officials, guilty of gang rape of 18 tribal women and violence against over 100 residents of Vachathi village. While 54 of the convicted members died during the course of the 19-year-long trial, the remaining 215 had appealed their sentencing before the high court. After the high court upheld the sentencing, residents of Vachathi distributed sweets and burst firecrackers. S Govindhan, a resident of Vachathi said, "Everyone in the village woke up today with nervousness. But we were hopeful and confident that the verdict would be in our favour. There was some unease as we recalled what happened years ago. But it was short-lived, minutes after the judgment was announced all our unease vanished."

HEAVY RAIN LIKELY IN ODISHA

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bhubaneswar

THIS monsoon season's last low pressure area formed over Bay of Bengal on Friday and is expected to trigger widespread rainfall in Odisha, said the IMD.

The national weather forecaster said under the influence of the cyclonic circulation over Myanmar and adjoining east-central Bay of Bengal, a low pressure area has formed over north-east and adjoining east-central Bay of Bengal. "It is likely to become a well-marked low pressure area and move north-westwards towards north Odisha and adjoining West Bengal coasts in the next 48 hours. The probability of the system's further intensification is less," said director at Bhubaneswar Meteorological Centre HR Biswas.

Light to moderate rainfall/thundershower is expected to occur at most places in the state between Sunday and Tuesday. The regional Met office has forecast heavy rainfall in parts of the state for the next four days. The Met office has cautioned about waterlogging in low lying areas, inundation of agriculture fields and possible damage to kutcha roads/houses.

Under the influence of the system, squally weather with gusty surface winds reaching 35 km/h to 45 km/h will likely prevail over north adjoining west-central Bay of Bengal off Odisha coasts between September 30 and October 1. The Met office has advised fishermen to not venture into north adjoining west-central Bay of Bengal off Odisha coasts during the period.

Kerala to get widespread rain till Sunday: IMD

T'Puram: The IMD has predicted widespread rainfall with isolated heavy rainfall across Kerala till Sunday. As per the forecast, low-pressure areas formed over Eastern Arabian Sea and the Bay of Bengal are likely to become well-marked low-pressure areas by Saturday, bringing more rain. The IMD issued yellow alerts in all districts except Thiruvananthapuram, Kollam, Pathanamthitta and Kottayam on Saturday. The alerts are likely to be reviewed later. "The impact of low pressure is likely to last two more days. An even streaming of Westerly wind is aiding the rainfall. It is expected to reduce by Monday," said Rajeevan Erikkulam, a meteorologist with the Kerala State Disaster Management Authority.

I&B Ministry orders probe into Vishal's bribery allegations against censor board

A DAY after actor Vishal claimed that he paid Rs 6.5 lakh to a mediator to get his latest release Mark Antony certified by the Central Board for Film Certification (CBFC), the government has said that it is launching an investigation into the alleged corruption. The Ministry of Information and Broadcasting tweeted on Friday that it has appointed a senior officer to conduct an enquiry into the matter.

"Government has zero tolerance for corruption and the strictest action will be taken against anyone involved. A senior officer from... has been deputed to Mumbai to conduct an inquiry today itself," Information & Broadcasting Ministry wrote on X.

"The issue of corruption in CBFC brought forth by actor @VishalKOfficial is extremely unfortunate. The Government has zero tolerance for corruption and the strictest action will be taken against anyone found involved," according to a statement by the I&B Ministry.

The ministry said a senior officer has been deputed to conduct an inquiry into the matter. "A senior officer from the Ministry of Information & Broadcasting has been deputed to Mumbai to conduct an inquiry today itself. We request everyone to cooperate with the Ministry, by providing information about any other instance of harassment by CBFC at jsfilms.inb@nic.in," the I&B Ministry statement read.

Filmmaker Ashoke Pandit, who is a former member of the CBFC told ANI that Tamil actor has levelled "very serious" allegations and has demanded an investigation by the CBI.

He further said that people named by the Tamil actor as having taken the money are not employees of the CBFC and therefore "whoever the money was given to has to be investigated."

"Corruption being shown on the silver screen is fine... but not in real life... can't digest. Especially in government offices. And, even worse, happening in the CBFC Mumbai office. Had to pay Rs 6.5 lakhs for my film Mark Antony (Hindi version). Two transactions... Rs 3 lakhs for screening and Rs 3.5 lakhs for certificate," Vishal wrote on X.

"Never faced this situation ever in my career. Had no option but to pay the concerned mediator... coz too much at stake since the movie was released today."

TTD relaxes restriction on two-wheeler movement

ENS @ Tirupati

THE Tirumala Tirupati Devasthanams (TTD) on Friday relaxed the restrictions it had imposed on the movement of two-wheelers. The relaxation came into force with immediate effect from Saturday onwards. Henceforth, the two-wheelers will be allowed to ply on ghat roads upto 10 pm.

Following the fatal attack on a six-year-old girl on the Alipiri trekking path in August, the TTD imposed several restrictions on the movement of pilgrims including restricting the movement of two-wheelers on the ghat roads from 6 pm to 6 am. The TTD took a string of measures following of the movement of wild cats in Alipiri footpath keeping in view the safety of devotees.

The TTD and the State forest department officials took up an operation to catch the wild animals on prowl and trapped six wild cats in the area since the attack on the six-year-old. The authorities, who have been tracking the movement of wild animals particularly leopards and bears, had confirmed no further threat from wild animals.

After taking stock of the situation, it decided to relax the restrictions on the timings over the movement of two-wheelers," TTD Executive Officer AV Dharma Reddy announced during a review meeting with TTD officials in Tirumala on Saturday.

99 M'luru MBBS students to be shifted to other colleges

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

THE High Court of Karnataka directed the Director of Medical Education (DME) to temporarily transfer 99 MBBS first-year students admitted to GR Medical College Hospital and Research Centre in Mangaluru to other private colleges in the State to help them appear for the examination to be held next month.

This is in view of the Medical Assessment and Rating Board (MARB) of the National Medical Commission (NMC) initiating legal action on finding the college forging a letter for renewal of permission for MBBS course for 2nd batch (1st renewal) for the academic year 2022-23.

Passing the interim order after hearing a petition filed by

Dhatri DS Avnvekar and 98 other students studying in the college, a division bench of Justice G Narendar and Justice Vijaykumar A Patil said this interim order is subject to the final orders on the writ petitions filed by the college.

The Bench said the exercise of redistribution of students should be completed by October 3. The court said it was apparent that a serious error was committed in permitting the admission of the petitioners to the college which at that point of time was not granted permission to proceed with admissions.

The Advocate General submitted that since the petitioners have been admitted to a private college and as the fee structure in government and private colleges varied, they have to be accommodated according to the quota under which they have been admitted, and that too, in private institutions. Hence, the authorities need some time to transfer the students to 24 private colleges and file an affidavit, he said.

The counsel, appearing on behalf of the NMC, submitted that the NMC has already issued a communication to the State Government, allowing the transfer of the students.

After this, the court directed the counsel, representing the Rajiv Gandhi University of Health Sciences, to file an affidavit placing on record the steps that the university would take post re-distribution of the students and the schedule within which the same will be completed.

The counsel representing the Union Government submitted that the appeal filed by the college has been rejected as it had been filed beyond the stipulated period. The court then noted that the said aspects about the permission and right of admission of the college would be looked into separately.

Meanwhile, the college furnished a communication dated September 13, 2023, claiming that the NMC has granted permission to admit one batch of students against the UG course's annual intake of 150 seats.

SETTLE THE LEGAL STATUS OF ONLINE GAMING COMPANIES

ONLINE gaming, casinos and horse racing will attract a higher goods and services tax (GST) of 28 percent as against the current 18 percent from October 1. The move standardises tax treatment for similar activities across the country, but is likely to have a significant impact on the online gaming industry. Not only is a higher GST rate being imposed on the sector, but it is also applicable on the full value of the bets placed by customers, unlike the current model where GST is levied only on the platform fee charged by gaming operators. Following the revised GST levy, the cost of online gaming will increase for users regardless of whether they win or lose. As the GST is an indirect tax, operators will pass it entirely on to consumers.

The decision has led to a standoff between gaming companies and GST authorities for two reasons. One, the gaming industry wanted to retain the distinction between games of skill and games of chance while determining the legal status and tax framework. It argued that games of chance constitute gambling, whereas games of skill do not, and hence they cannot be grouped together. But the government maintained that gaming is not an essential service and needs no tax concessions. Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman noted that the idea was to tax the value generated by these activities rather than classifying them based on their nature, putting to rest the debate over reclassification. The other issue pertains to the spate of showcause notices issued by the authorities, raising an estimated ₹1 lakh crore of tax demands on the gaming industry.

The affected companies have challenged the demands, contesting that the 28 percent levy was imposed retrospectively though the amendment comes with prospective effect. Besides, a host of online gaming companies and casinos claim to have received notices for non-payment of past years' GST on the full face value of bets placed on their platforms, as against the practice of paying tax on the gross gaming revenue earned in platform fees. They reason that these tax demands far exceed the revenue collected by the companies and complying could force them to shut down or file for bankruptcy. For a smoother rollout, the government must resolve the legal dispute swiftly apart from ensuring that the higher tax rates do not pave the way for illegal gaming operators.

ASTEROID MISSION ALERT: TACKLE THREAT AS ONE

ON September 24, excitement peaked in the astronomer and astrobiologist communities when a capsule carrying 250 grams of rubble from Bennu, a carbon-rich asteroid, landed in a remote part of the Utah desert in the US. It was from NASA's OSIRIS-REx (stands for Origins, Spectral Interpretation, Resource Identification, Security-Regolith Explorer) mission launched in 2016, which collected samples from Bennu in 2020, flew by Earth at a distance of 1 lakh km last week, and jettisoned the sample-laden capsule which parachuted down in the desert. NASA is expected to carry out analyses of the sample and announce the results on October 11, which explains the excitement among scientists.

About 4.5 billion years ago, before the planets formed, the infant Sun was surrounded by a disk of dust and gas called the protoplanetary disk. While most of this disk divided and collapsed to form the planets, the leftover ended up as the asteroid belt between the orbits of Mars and Jupiter. The largest known asteroid, Ceres, measures 900 km in diameter and the smallest, 2015 TC25, just two metres. These are among an estimated 17 lakh asteroids in the belt. Asteroids evoke curiosity because of their scientific value as much as for the threat they may pose to Earth. This is why missions exploring and intercepting asteroids excite scientists. Asteroids are believed to carry a variety of metals including cobalt, nickel, gold, platinum and rhodium—one estimate puts the value of the entire asteroid belt at $700 quintillion (a quintillion is a billion billions). They are also considered to be time capsules that hold secrets to the formation of the solar system and the building blocks of life on Earth.

On the threat front, the entire dinosaur population was wiped out about 65 million years ago when a 10-km-wide asteroid struck Earth off Mexico's Yucatán peninsula, resulting in the 180-km-wide Chicxulub crater. It is said to have caused a decades-long winter, with the impact-induced dust plume covering the globe and shutting out sunlight and heat. A recurrence of an asteroid strike of that magnitude remains a possibility. There are much larger asteroids in the belt that can come loose and head towards our Earth. Asteroids signify the good and the very bad—they can tell us about our future and past, and they can wipe us out. They need to be tackled by humanity as one.

QUICK TAKE

LEARN FROM TAMIL NADU SCHOOLS

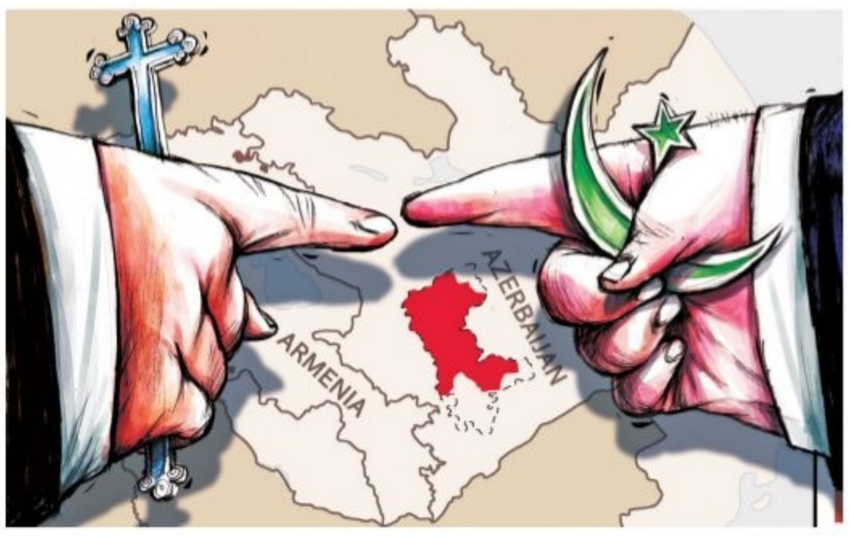
JANAKI Nair's new book Un/Common Schooling traces the challenges of alternative education in 20th century India. It reminds us that we have never been short of extraordinary innovators: from Tagore, Aurobindo and Krishnamurti to K T Margaret's Tilak Nagar Children's Centre in Bengaluru, Rashmi Paliwal's Eklavya in Madhya Pradesh, and Malathi M C's Vikasana in Doddakallasandra. None of them have grown beyond a small area or chain—except one. Activity-based education pioneered by bureaucrat M P Vijayakumar went from one school in Chennai to more than 35,000 across the state. Other states have looked at it, but none has implemented it in full. They should do it to unburden the children and foster critical thinking.

India should learn from the Armenia-Azerbaijan skirmish and play up its own diversity. Otherwise it risks tripping up on its own religious and demographic faultline

THE CLASH OF CIVILISATIONS IN CAUCASUS

MANISH TEWARI

Member of parliament, lawyer, and former I&B minister



SOUMYADIP SINHA

THE Caucasus is a rugged expanse of land in eastern Europe between the Black Sea and the Caspian Sea. It hosts areas of southern Russia and the independent nations of Georgia, Armenia and Azerbaijan—all parts of the erstwhile Union of Soviet Socialist Republics (USSR). While geographically this territory lies between Europe, Asia, Russia and the Middle East, culturally it is on the frontiers where Islam meets Christianity; politically, it is the inflection point where imperfect democracy collides with perfect authoritarianism.

Armenia is overwhelmingly Christian, with 97 percent of the population subscribing to the Armenian Apostolic faith, one of the oldest Christian churches founded in the first century CE. On the other side, Azerbaijan is 96 percent Muslim, with 65 percent of the people adhering to Shia Islam and the rest the Sunni faith. Four-fifths of Georgia is Orthodox Christian. The three countries, despite being denominationally disparate, are not avowedly theocratic.

A mirror of this difference can be found in Jerusalem, which is divided into four quarters. The Armenian quarter is the smallest; the others are the Christian, Jewish and Muslim quarters. A walk through this ancient city brings into sharp relief religious and civilisational conflicts stretching back millenniums.

The reflected faultline in the Caucasus is aflame again with the Armenia-Azerbaijan conflict over the Nagorno-Karabakh region. Before delving into the conflict and its implications, it is essential to provide a historical context.

For centuries, Nagorno-Karabakh has served as a buffer between three major civilisational strains represented by the Orthodox Christian Russian empire, the Sunni Ottoman empire, and the Shiite Iranian empire. In 1805, the region definitively became part of the Russian empire through the Treaty of Kurekchay. During the Bolshevik revolution in Russia, it attempted to declare independence but was later captured by the Red Army and integrated into the Soviet Union. Within the Soviet structure, the region was included as part of the Azerbaijan Soviet Socialist Republic with a significant degree of regional autonomy. Following the dissolution of the USSR, Nagorno-Karabakh's parliament voted in favour of uniting with Armenia. However, this move was not recognised by the newly formed state of Azerbaijan, leading to Armenia's de facto proxy control over the region.

With the capture of Nagorno-Karabakh by Azerbaijani military, an independent republic of Artsakh was created from it in the 1990s. It was given its own government, president and army flag; but no other country recognised it. This week its President Samvel Shahramayan signed a decree dissolving the State from January 1, 2024. However, this dissolution may be just another tactical halfway house in this civilisational conflict and by no means the endgame.

Armenia's treaty ally Russia decided to stand down and allow Azerbaijan, a hydrocarbon-rich part of the Caucasus backed by Turkey and Iran, to first blockade and then usurp the region. Now Russia is in no position to burn its bridges with Turkey and Iran, given the bruising it is receiving in Ukraine.

Artsakh survived three decades of war and the pressures of the Great Game in the Caucasus. But its predominantly ethnic Armenian people are now fleeing from the recent onslaught. They are driven by deep-seated fears of ethnic cleansing they had faced in the dying days of the Ottoman empire—the Armenian Genocide of 1916.

From the Armenian perspective, having endured a century of severe persecution and confronted with an omnipresent existential threat from Turkic groups, the preservation of Armenian-controlled Nagorno-Karabakh was an acculturation imperative. Armenians argue that the region has a historical connection to the greater Armenian kingdom. On the other hand, the ethnically Turkic Azerbaijanis harbour deep concerns over the proxy Armenian control over parts of Nagorno-Karabakh that they say lie within its internationally recognised boundaries. They, too, assert historical ties to the region and trace their roots to the Seljuk empire.

In his thesis The Clash of Civilizations, Samuel Huntington prophesised that conflicts in the post Cold War era would be driven by cultural clashes rather than ideological ones. The ongoing conflict between Armenia and Azerbaijan is just one among many theatres where such clashes are unfolding. It is for this reason that Turkey, with its Islamic and Turkic affiliations to Azerbaijan, is providing arms and drones that have been used aggressively by the Azeris. Similarly, Armenians, with their cultural and religious ties to Christendom, have historically been supported by the Anglo-Saxon order.

Does the Nagorno-Karabakh conflict have any lessons for India, given that civilisational rather than ideological faultlines would be sharper in the decades ahead?

The Indian civilisation is built on a rich tapestry of cultural diversity and pluralism. The intrinsic features of the Indian civilisational construct stand in direct juxtaposition to its neighbours Pakistan and China.

Pakistan, with its acquired Islamic identity and perpetual quest for legitimacy, has drifted very far from the founding vision enunciated by Mohammad Ali Jinnah, who despite authoring a religious partition of India in cahoots with the British, still fantasised that Pakistan could be a pluralistic entity. China, a Sinic civilisation with a homogenised demography and an authoritarian state structure, also stands in contrast to India's multiculturalism.

It is therefore existential for India to surmount its major domestic cultural faultlines that could be exploited by its adversaries if it has to deal with its unsettled extrinsic and intrinsic periphery. It is also imperative that it tries to find a common ground and develop synergies with like-minded civilisational entities who respect diversity and multiculturalism.

Trying to impose uniformity like 'one nation, one tax', 'one nation, one election', or 'one nation, one leader'—worse still, 'one nation, one megaphone'—would weaken us. India must punch to its civilisational strength of plurality; otherwise, given the monotheism it confronts on its land borders, it runs the risk of becoming another civilisational battlefield.

Former Inspector General, Central Reserve Police Force

SUICIDES are rising in the ranks of the Central Reserve Police Force (CRPF), the most versatile paramilitary force in the country. It has once again brought to focus the need to review the selection process, training and pattern of deployment of the force.

The fact that ten deaths by suicide occurred in less than a month recently is alarming and calls for urgent action and involvement of higher levels of leadership. The service conditions, facilities and ethos of all armed forces, including the paramilitary forces, are more or less the same. Then why are cases of suicide more prevalent in the CRPF?

There cannot be any disagreement on the conclusion that the main reason for such incidents is disturbed family life. The service conditions, nature and area of deployment don't allow a family life. While regular armed forces and other paramilitary forces are able to manage family life better by rationalising and rotating deployments, the CRPF has very limited scope for such rotations. It can only move from one theatre of conflict to another, as it is tasked with counter-insurgency, anti-terrorism and anti-Naxal operations.

The CRPF generally cannot think of family life, leave alone planning the education and settlement of their children. Personnel do get posted to group centres, which are located mostly in state capitals, and training centres where family accommodation and other facilities are available. These centres can accommodate around 15 percent of the total force strength. The postings to these centres are strictly done according to well-established norms and merit, so there is no grouse on that score.

The ever-changing dynamics of internal security issues keep the rest of the troops on their toes, and CRP becomes 'Chalte Raho Pyare (Keep on moving, dear)'.

The leadership of the force has been seized of the matter, and maximum efforts are made to minimise the frequency of dislocations. But family life is a distant dream for the bulk of the force. Even when they are posted to one of the few established centres after twelve to fifteen years of waiting, they may not bring family along due to their children likely having to adapt to a different environment, medium of education and syllabus.

Now, this situation is nothing new to a fauji, one may say. But things have changed drastically in our society. The disintegration of joint families means there is no support system in place back home anymore. News of children falling sick, their poor performance in school, and conflicts within the family are promptly passed on to soldiers using faster communication systems.

Already on stressful assignments in hostile and risky surroundings, not all of them are tough enough to handle these together for a long time, and feel helpless and frustrated, becoming vulnerable to the tendency of self harm. The expectations of new-generation spouses are also high because of their higher educational qualifications and comfortable upbringings. The capacity to struggle is obviously depleting.

Suicides are rising among the ranks of the Central Reserve Police Force. The main reason is a lack of decent family life. The authorities can give them some comfort with stress-reducing programmes

Involvement in sports and games, cultural and regimental activities are missing on account of frequent movement, and depressive disorders set in for some.

Training is yet another casualty of extensive deployment and frequent movement. The Central Reserve Police Force is anything but 'reserve' anymore, with such heavy and constant engagement in counter-insurgency, anti-terrorism and anti-naxal operations.

The ruggedness and ability-to-struggle nature of soldiers of the past, who were mostly from remote villages, are missing in the new generation of soldiers. So, a perfunctory Sainik Sammelan (a gathering of soldiers) is not enough to hear and redress the grievances of soldiers. The commanders need to spend more time with them informally, and hold more interactive sessions and inculcate in themselves the habit of leading from the front. This will help them understand the soldiers better. Welfare and training should go hand in hand. The soldiers need to always feel assured that they are not alone—not only by the force but also society at large.

So what are the ways out? Psychological tests at the time of recruitment and periodically thereafter, re-emphasis on regimental activities, recreation, sports and games. Introduction of a buddy system, where a friend within the force is assigned to each personnel, would go a long way too. Inclusion of yoga and meditation in the routine would also help, apart from encouraging spiritual pursuits in the Sarva Dharma Prarthana Sthal, the common prayer place of the unit.

There is nothing new in these suggestions, and real commanders of the force must be implementing them. It has been observed that incidents of suicide do not occur under the command of officers who follow these fine principles. Where these incidents do occur, it points to command failure.

And finally, why should a soldier entering the CRPF be tasked only with the arduous duties of counter-insurgency, anti-terrorist and anti-Naxal operations till the end of service? Will he be mentally and physically fit for it? Why not think of placing all young soldiers recruited to the central paramilitary forces for internal security and border duties, under the CRPF and the Border Security Force? After a sufficient exposure of ten to fifteen years, they can be drafted on static duties like airport duty and other sensitive duties under the Central Industrial Security Force.

For better coordination, the government must think of creating a unified command for central paramilitary forces similar to the Chief of Defence Staff.

'China threat to rules-based world'

Army Chief General Pande says Beijing looking at geo-politics and trade as zero-sum games

MAYANK SINGH @ New Delhi

CHINESE belligerence is presenting a threat to the rules-based international order, Army Chief General MK Pande commented on Friday, while mulling over the emerging geo-strategic issues that have relevance from India's perspective.

Speaking at the annual session of the PHD Chamber of Commerce and Industry, General Pande said, "Possession of political, economic, technological and military power has accorded it (China) a new position in the world order, which it intends to lead. With its economic heft, China has been looking at geo-political and trade engagements as zero-sum games."

"Concurrently, Chinese belligerence is evident in its continuing propensity to project power outside its region, in turn presenting a threat to rules-based international order," he said.

The Army Chief said the resolute and firm manner with which the country stood up to China during the events of April-May 2020 "has made the world take notice of the political and military resolve of a rising India".

Many nations today "also appear ready to take the China issue head-on, especially post-pandemic, and as the realisation of its predatory economic pursuits sink in," Pande said.

The Chinese People's Liberation Army had clashed with the Indian Army soldiers in May 2020 and had moved its troops at multiple points, leading to standoffs in Eastern Ladakh. Indian Army also mobilised more than 60,000 troops with commensurate fire power.

Referring to the internal security situations India is dealing with, the Army chief said it has its unique set of challenges. "But the most important pointer for us is that our challenges of unsettled borders continue and stand amplified due to collusion between our western and northern adversary. Infirmities in border management can lead to wider conflicts," Pande maintained.

On examples displaying India's diplomatic ability, General Pande pointed to the nation's "complex global relationships" involving the interplay of interests, concerns and aspirations. He also touched upon the Russia-Ukraine conflict and growing strategic relevance of the Indo-Pacific theatre. "Our stance on the Russia-Ukraine conflict is a fine example, where we stood steadfast and clear in the legitimate pursuit of our national interests."

The successful conducting of G20 Summit heralded India's diplomatic ability to achieve consensus on values-based approach to growth and development for all, Pande said.

No money, infighting: Afghan embassy in India closes down

YESHI SELI @ New Delhi

THE Afghan Embassy in New Delhi has closed down due to a lack of financial support and internal conflicts among diplomats, some of whom have sought asylum in other countries.

"The presence of the Afghan diplomatic mission in India cannot function normally without the help of the Indian government. After careful consideration of the current situation, the embassy regrettably finds itself in a position where this support is not forthcoming. Given these circumstances, the embassy has concluded that it is in the best interest of our mission and its staff to close by the end of September 2023. The embassy requests the Ministry of External Affairs to facilitate this process," Afghanistan's Ministry of Foreign Affairs said in a verbal note.

While ambassador Farid Mamundzay, who was appointed by the Ashraf Ghani government before Taliban took over, has been in London for several months, several other diplomats too have taken asylum in various countries such as the US, Canada and Australia.

Trouble had been brewing for several months, with a power struggle emerging between Mamundzay and Taliban-appointed ambassador Qadir Shah, which became public a few months ago.

The Afghanistan embassy in New Delhi on Friday | SHEKHAR YADAV

Mamundzay continued to serve as the envoy even after the Taliban took control in 2021. However, in April 2023, Shah claimed himself to be appointed by the Taliban as the head of India's mission. He had been working as a trade counselor in Delhi since 2020.

"The Indian government is aware of these developments and has received a note verbale regarding the situation, which they are currently examining. They are scrutinising the authenticity of the communication. This scrutiny is in the context of the ambassador being absent from India for many months, the gradual departure of diplomats to third countries reportedly after receiving asylum, and reports of infighting among embassy personnel," said a source.

Though India has not officially recognised the Taliban-led government, the embassy in Kabul is operational. It is referred to as a technical establishment that distributes humanitarian aid, but consular services are not available.

'Swachhata Hi Seva': 6.4L cleanliness drives lined up for Oct 1, says Puri

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

UNDER the 'Swachhata Hi Seva' campaign, nearly 6.4 lakh events are scheduled to be held by social organisations and resident and trade associations across the country on Sunday.

This mega cleanliness drive calls upon citizens to join in the cleaning of public places, including markets, railway tracks, water bodies, tourist locations and places of worship.

Speaking at a press conference on Friday, Union Housing and Urban Affairs Minister Hardeep Singh Puri said that Army, Navy, and Air Force personnel will also join hands with civilians to clean up garbage, railway tracks, heritage buildings, step-wells and forts.

"The Prime Minister's call for 'Ek Tareekh Ek Ghanta Ek Saath' (An hour together on Day One) implies hardcore cleanliness activities – shramdaan (volunteering) for swachhata (cleanliness). This is not about pledges, plog runs, rangoli competitions, wall paintings or street plays. Shramdaan is only for cleanliness drives across the nation," the minister said.

BJP's Raj poll plan: Divided into 7 zones, senior leaders in all 32 dists

RAJESH KUMAR THAKUR @ New Delhi

KEEN on wresting Rajasthan from Congress, the BJP is learnt to have deputed senior leaders in each of 32 districts of the poll-bound state to monitor the party's electoral momentum for the upcoming assembly polls.

Party sources told this newspaper that Rajasthan has been divided into seven zones to for effective electioneering. "Each district has a zila-pramukh (district chief) supplemented by senior office-bearers from other states for election-related works. They were formally trained on September 26," said a party functionary.

It is learnt that more than 200 leaders from other states who are either MLAs, former state presidents, former CMs, deputy CMs and others having long experience of elections, would also be deputed across seven zones to further support and monitor poll-related activities.

Sources said a formal training has been planned on October 3 before assigning them for districts and assembly areas. "A formal discussion has taken place on dozens of candidates for ticket distribution in Rajasthan. After the next Central Election Committee meeting, which is likely on October 1, a formal approval of candidates is expected," said a senior party functionary, adding that the party is embarked on a well-thought-out strategic planning to wrest power from Congress by exposing the government over crime and corruption.

BJP sources said the party has deputed in-charge in each zone along with a group of experienced leaders drawn from many states of north India. For instance, MLA Asim Goyal is said to be made in-charge of the Bikaner zone while state vice-president of BJP in Punjab Subhash Sharma has reportedly been made in-charge of Bikaner city.

Similarly, the BJP has made many MLAs from other states in charge of various zones. Legislators from Bihar, UP, Himachal Pradesh, Haryana, Punjab, Uttarakhand, Delhi and other states have been roped in for a wider influence in Rajasthan. It is also said that Union minister Jitendra Singh and Dr Anil Jain, MP from UP, have been assigned Jaipur city.

MP from J&K Jugal Kishore, former J&K CM Nirmal Singh and former deputy CM Govind Gupta have been kept ready.

Meanwhile, BJP chief JP Nadda on Friday chaired a meeting of party general secretaries over poll preparations in Rajasthan, MP and Chhattisgarh. All general secretaries — BL Santosh Arun Singh, Tarun Chugh, Sunil Bansal, Bandi Sanjay Kumar, Vinod Tawade, Kailash Vijayavargiya and others attended the meeting, which discussed the upcoming polls.

ISKCON serves ₹100 cr defamation notice on Maneka over cow remark

RAJESH KUMAR THAKUR @ New Delhi

THE International Society for Krishna Consciousness (ISKCON) on Friday said it has served ₹100 crore defamation notice on BJP MP from Sultanpur and noted animal rights activist Maneka Gandhi for questioning the care given to cows in its 'gaushala' after the animals stop yielding milk.

The ISKCON notice came after an undated video went viral in which Gandhi could be heard making the allegation.

ISKCON vice-president Radharamn Das said the allegation was unfounded. "Today, we have sent a ₹100 crore defamation notice to her," Das said, adding that the worldwide community of ISKCON devotees and all those associated with the organisation were deeply hurt by the allegations.

He also termed Gandhi's statement a "malicious accusation" far from the truth.

Gandhi is heard in the video that the chain of temples is the "biggest cheat in the country, which sells cows from its gaushalas (cowsheds) to butchers."

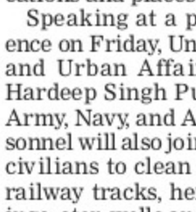
"ISKCON establishes gaushalas and earns unlimited benefits from the government in the form of land," she had said. The video created a flutter among the ISKCON devotees.

Refuting the allegations, ISKCON called them "unsubstantiated and false."

"How can an MP, once a Union minister, lie without any evidence against such a big society?" the ISKCON notice asked, adding that the organisation runs more than 60 cowsheds protecting hundreds of sacred cows and bulls, and providing personalised care for the animals for their entire lifetime. "Many cows currently in ISKCON's gaushalas were brought to us after being found abandoned, injured or rescued from being slaughtered."

No official statement was available from Gandhi.

President gives assent, women's bill now a law



PREETHA NAIR @ New Delhi

DAYS after Parliament passed the Women's Reservation Bill, President Droupadi Murmu on Friday gave her assent to the legislation, making it a law. The law provides for 33 percent reservation for women in the Lok Sabha and state Assemblies.

Though it was introduced as the Constitution (128th) Amendment Bill in the Lok Sabha, it will now be known as the Constitution (106th Amendment) Act, as some proposed constitutional amendments are yet to be passed by Parliament.

"It shall come into force on such date as the Central government may, by notification in the official gazette, appoint," read the Law Ministry notification.

However, the reservation will be implemented after the next census and the subsequent delimitation exercise—redrawing of Lok Sabha and Assembly constituencies—and is therefore unlikely to be implemented in the 2024 elections.

The delimitation exercise scheduled after 2026 will determine the seats that are to be reserved for women. According to the law, the quota for women in the Lok Sabha and assemblies will continue for 15 years, and Parliament can later extend the benefit period. The bill was passed by the Lok Sabha and the Rajya Sabha last week in a special session of Parliament, marking it as a historic achievement.

Women's Reservation Bill: Empowerment beyond the elite

KANGANA RANAUT
Actor

INDIA, known for its rich cultural heritage and diversity, reached a historic milestone on the day when Nari Shakti Vandan Adhiniyam, or the Women's Reservation Bill, was introduced in Parliament, marking a monumental step towards women's empowerment. The day will remain etched forever in India's political history.

As a witness to this momentous occasion, I could not help but feel a sense of pride and hope for a brighter future for women. This landmark move, spearheaded by the BJP government under the leadership of Prime Minister Narendra Modi, sends a powerful message: women's empowerment is not just a promise but a commitment etched in legislative action.

For years, promises had been made by governments regarding the Women's Reservation Bill, but action remained elusive. It was only under the visionary leadership of PM Modi that these promises were transformed into reality. This achievement serves as a testament to the government's unwavering dedication to women's empowerment, a cause deeply rooted in the ethos of our nation. In a world where women continue to face various forms of discrimination and violence, this bill emerged as an urgent need, reflecting the reverence for women ingrained in Indian culture.

The journey of the Women's Reservation Bill had long been characterised by discussions and debates with little substantive action to show for it. However, the BJP government broke this pattern and set a precedent for the entire nation. In the field of politics, women often struggle to establish their presence and have their voices heard. The Nari Shakti Vandan Adhiniyam promises to be a transformative force, providing a platform for women determined to bring change.

The benefits of this bill extend beyond urban areas and elite circles. It is designed to empower women from diverse backgrounds. It sends out a strong message that women's empowerment is a tangible commitment to create a more equitable society.

PM Modi has stated that the special Parliament session would be historic, marking the beginning of a new era, and it has been proved as well. The nation witnessed the inauguration of the official proceedings in the new Parliament building with a bill deeply rooted in Indian culture. I cannot express my gratitude enough to the government for granting me the privilege of witnessing this historic moment.

The contrast between the old Parliament, which stood for nearly a century, and the new building is symbolic of India's transformation towards self-reliance or Aatmanirbhar Bharat. The former represented an era of colonial subjugation, while the latter symbolises a self-determined and sovereign India. Equipped with state-of-the-art facilities, the new Parliament structure not only embodies the physical prowess of the nation but also encapsulates the journey of Indian democracy, rich in art and culture. The new building incorporates the specialties of different parts of the country and has the spirit of 'Ek Bharat Shreshtha Bharat.'

> The contrast between the old Parliament that stood for nearly a century and the new building is symbolic of India's transformation towards self-reliance or Aatmanirbhar Bharat. The former represented an era of colonial subjugation, while the latter symbolises a self-determined and sovereign India.

One striking feature of the new Parliament that I found inspiring is the gold-plated scepter known as Sengol, positioned close to the Speaker's podium. Derived from the Tamil word 'Semmai,' meaning righteousness, Sengol epitomises the essence of true leadership. As asserted by PM Modi, its presence will serve as a reminder of the moral and ethical principles that should guide those who hold power in our democracy. The choice of Ganesha Chaturthi as the auspicious day for the first session of the new Parliament is symbolic. Lord Ganesha is a symbol of prosperity and success in Indian culture. It is befitting that on this auspicious day, we witnessed the passage of the Women's Bill.

As we look back on this momentous occasion, we are reminded that the new Parliament building represents not only the physical progress of India but also its commitment to its cultural roots and democratic values. It stands as a testament to the nation's resilience and the collective effort to move forward into a future that is defined by self-reliance, inclusivity and progress. The nation will remember that the official proceedings in the new Parliament building started with a bill that has its roots at the core of Indian culture.

The passage of the Women's Bill is a watershed moment in India's journey towards gender equality and women's empowerment. It not only empowers women but also benefits society as a whole by amplifying diverse voices, addressing critical issues, and inspiring future generations. It is a time for celebration, reflection and action, as we take another significant step towards a more just and equitable society where women's voices are heard and respected in the corridors of power.

Priyanka rally on Oct 5

Rahul Gandhi's MP campaign has been reinforced by Priyanka Gandhi's rallies in the recent past. She is due to address another poll rally in tribal-dominated area of west MP's Dhar district on October 5

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bhopal

MORE than three months after his party's national general secretary sister Priyanka Gandhi Vadra launched the grand old party's assembly poll campaign, Congress MP Rahul Gandhi will address his first election rally in the poll-bound Madhya Pradesh on Saturday.

The former Congress national president will join one of the seven ongoing Jan Akrosh Yatras of the party across the state and address the Jan Akrosh Rally in Polaykalan village falling under Kalapipal assembly constituency of west Madhya Pradesh's Shajapur district.

Earlier, on June 12, Priyanka had addressed Congress' rally in Jabalpur and just a few weeks later addressed another rally in Gwalior. She is scheduled to address another rally in the tribal-dominated Mohankheda area of west MP's Dhar district on October 5.

Rahul Gandhi will return on Saturday to the west MP region bordering Rajasthan, nine months after his Kanyakumari-Kashmir Bharat Jodo Yatra entered into the Congress-ruled state in December 2022 through the same part of the BJP-ruled MP.

Importantly, the Kalapipal seat of Shajapur district was won by Congress' young candidate Kunal Chaudhary in 2018. Two out of the three assembly seats of Shajapur district are currently held by the Congress.

Through Saturday's Jan Akrosh Rally, the Congress aims at boosting its cadres on 20-25 seats of western MP (Malwa region, particularly the Ujjain division) and neighbouring central MP.

With the rally being held under the Ujjain division of west MP, senior Congress leaders, including Rahul, Priyanka and the party's general secretary in-charge for Madhya Pradesh, Randeep Singh Surjewala, have been attacking the Shivraj Singh Chouhan-led BJP government in the state over the recent rape of a 12-year-old cognitively challenged girl in Ujjain district.

However, the principal opposition party faced an embarrassment on Friday, owing to its first-time scheduled caste MLA Kalpana Verma accusing Manoj Bagri, the party's local leader in Satna district of attempting to outrage her modesty.

Edge for Congress

The move has opened doors for the Congress to strengthen its position in the Shivpuri assembly seat, which they last won in 1985. Former BJP MLA Virendra Raghuvanshi, is a leading contender for Congress ticket.

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bhopal

In a significant development ahead of Madhya Pradesh's upcoming assembly polls, state cabinet minister Yashodhara Raje Scindia, who is also the aunt of Union Minister Jyotiraditya Scindia, has informed the BJP that she will not contest the elections due to her ill health. Yashodhara, a four-time MLA from Shivpuri and former MP from Gwalior, currently serves as the sports and youth welfare minister. Citing health concerns due to her four past battles with COVID-19, she informed her decision in a letter to the state party leadership.

State BJP President VD Sharma confirmed this decision during a press conference in Bhopal, acknowledging Yashodhara's seniority and respect within the party.

This move has opened doors for the Congress to strengthen its position in the Shivpuri assembly seat, which they last won in 1985. Former BJP MLA Virendra Raghuvanshi, who recently returned to the Congress after winning the Kolaras seat in Shivpuri in 2018, is a leading contender for the Congress ticket in Shivpuri.

Speculation surrounds the possibility of Jyotiraditya Scindia, Yashodhara's nephew, making his Vidhan Sabha polls debut from her Shivpuri seat or other seats like Bamori or Kolaras in his former Lok Sabha constituency, Guna. However, sources close to the Union minister suggest he is not keen on the assembly polls but will comply with the party's decision if selected.

In BJP circles, there is also speculation about Yashodhara's potential participation in the 2024 general elections from the Gwalior Lok Sabha seat, which she previously won in 2007 and 2009. Yashodhara attributes her decision to health concerns stemming from multiple COVID-19 infections. The state spokesperson for the opposition AAP, Ramakant Patel, sees this as a sign that the BJP's senior leaders recognise potential losses in the state. This follows BJP national general secretary Kailash Vijayvargiya expressing reluctance to contest in the assembly polls. More BJP MLAs and ministers may follow suit in the coming days, citing the fear of defeat.

Apollo Multispeciality Hospitals Ltd purchased the asset which includes a building with a built-up area of 174,000 sq ft on a 1.4-acre plot for ₹102 crore from Future Oncology Hospital and Research Centre. When Apollo completes the hospital, the chain will have 325 more beds in Kolkata.

JU to miss deadline for hostel segregation

Jadavpur University will miss the deadline of the hostel segregation for first-year students as seniors staying at a hostel earmarked freshers are refusing to move out, officials of the institution said. The deadline for the hostel segregation was September 30. Around 15 senior students have refused to vacate the New Block Hostel, which JU has earmarked for freshers, to another facility, the official said. The university's failure to ensure that first-year students don't share hostel space with seniors acquires more significance because of a UGC communication to the JU registrar.

'Stop me if you can': HC, ED faceoff over summons to Abhishek in job scam

PRANAB MONDAL @ Kolkata

A high-pitched drama involving TMC leader Abhishek Banerjee, the Enforcement Directorate (ED) and the Calcutta High Court surfaced on Friday as the second-in-command of Bengal's ruling party challenged the central agency's summon asking him to appear at its office for questioning in connection with recruitment scam in schools.

He had said, "Stop me if u can," to go to a rally, and shortly after his comment, a justice of Calcutta High Court removed the investigating officer of the central agency expressing its dismay over the progress of the probe.

The court also directed that Mithilesh Kumar Mishra, ED's assistant director probing into the alleged recruitment scam who was removed on Friday, would not be given responsibility of the investigation of any case arising in Bengal.

It was Mishra who had served Abhishek's summon on Thursday asking him to come for questioning on October 3, when Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee's nephew was scheduled to be in Delhi to lead the protest against Bengal's dues from the Centre.

Challenging the ED's summon, Abhishek said on her X handle, "The fight against the deprivation of WB and its rightful dues shall persist regardless of the obstacles. No force on Earth can hinder my dedication to fight for the people of WB and their fundamental rights. I'll be in Delhi joining the protest on Oct 2nd & 3rd. STOP ME IF U CAN!"

Shortly after Abhishek's comment on the microblogging platform, High Court Justice Amrita Sinha, who came down heavily on the ED recently for its sloppy probe into the recruitment scam, relieved the central agency's investigating officer Mishra.

Permission denied to Cong leaders to meet MLA Khaira

HARPREET BAJWA @ Chandigarh

AMID the ongoing tension between INDIA alliance partners in Punjab following the arrest of Congress leader Sukhpal Khaira in a drug trafficking case, several Congress leaders were not allowed to meet the incarcerated Khaira, who is in the custody of Fazilka Crime Investigation Agency (CIA).

State Congress chief Amarinder Singh Raja Warring, leader of opposition Partap Singh Bajwa and former deputy chief minister Sukhjinder Singh Randhawa were stopped when they sought to meet Khaira. Bajwa has termed his arrest a "political vendetta" by the ruling AAP, saying the Congress will fight it legally.

Party workers led by Warring gathered outside the Jalalabad CIA office and demanded meeting the arrested MLA. An additional police force was rushed to the spot to keep calm. The party workers then went to the Fazilka CIA office after they came to know that Khaira was locked up in Fazilka and not in Jalalabad.

Warring, Bajwa and Sukhjinder Randhawa went to the CIA staff office, Fazilka, to meet Khaira, but they were not allowed.

"It is a violation of the democratic rights of public representatives. The AAP government has stooped to an all-time low and resorted to petty vendetta politics. The Punjab Congress will not be cowed by such pressure tactics," said Bajwa.

He said Khaira had recently put AAP's Rajya Sabha MP Raghav Chadha in the dock in his X post (formerly known as Twitter) by demanding a clarification from Chadha about how he gifted a 4-carat diamond ring to his newly wedded wife as his income as per the 2020-21 ITR was just ₹2.44 lakh.

Another slapgate in UP: Teacher held for getting Class V student thrashed

NAMITA BAJPAI @ Lucknow

WHILE the dust over the Muzaffarnagar primary school slapgate case is yet to be settled, its opposite was witnessed in Sambhal district in western UP wherein a school teacher was arrested for allegedly getting a class 5 student slapped by classmate on failing to answer her question on Thursday.

The school teacher, named Shaista, was arrested for "spreading communal hatred". The incident took place at a private school in Dugawar village under Asmoli police station limits on September 26 and an FIR was registered by the boy's father on Thursday. The arrest came hours after the registration of case.

The father of the student claimed in his police complaint that his son, in class 5, was unable to answer the teacher's question and she asked his classmate to slap him in front of the whole class. His son felt humiliated and was upset when he reached home.

According to Sambhal Additional SP Shrish Chandra, the father lodged a complaint that his son's teacher had asked a student belonging to a minority community to slap him.

'Communal hatred'

The school teacher, named Shaista, was arrested for "spreading communal hatred". The father of the student claimed in his police complaint that his son, in class 5, was unable to answer the teacher's question and she asked his classmate to slap him in front of the whole class. His son felt humiliated and was upset when he reached home

"We registered an FIR under sections 153 (promoting enmity between two groups on grounds of religion, race, etc) and 323 (voluntarily causing hurt) of IPC. We arrested teacher Shaista and are questioning her," said the officer.

In the earlier incident at Khubbapur village in Muzaffarnagar last month, school teacher Tripta Tyagi had asked a child of the majority community to slap his classmate belonging to a minority community for not doing homework.

Tyagi later put out a video where she apologised and sought for forgiveness. She, however, stressed throughout the video that there was no communal motive behind asking students to slap their classmate who was a minority.

The principal of Neha Public School of Muzaffarnagar says, "I made a mistake, but there was no Hindu-Muslim motive. The children had not done their homework and my intention was to ensure that they memorise (the lessons). "I could not get up, so I asked some children to slap him a couple of times so that he starts studying,"

A case was registered against her under IPC sections 323 (voluntarily causing hurt) and 504 (intentional insult with intent to provoke breach of the peace).

However, Tyagi has not been arrested.

For a cause: This teacher takes entire class to homes

NAMITA BAJPAI @ Lucknow

IN Jhansi, a government school teacher has demonstrated the "art of teaching." To inspire two absentee students who missed classes for several weeks due to various pretexts, Amit Verma, a primary school teacher posted at Lakara Primary School in Jhansi, took the entire class to their homes and started teaching there.

This unusual gesture has not only won him accolades from the authorities but also the hearts of the two students' parents, as they sent their children to school along with the teacher.

In rural areas, several parents get their wards admitted to government primary schools but do not send them, citing either farm work or engaging them in menial labor to increase family earnings.

Verma, hailing from Ghatkotra village in Mauranipur town, Jhansi, joined the teaching profession approximately 14 years ago. Currently, he is assigned to Lakara Primary School in the Badagaon block of the district.

The school has a student population of 241, with a principal, half a dozen assistant teachers, and a Shiksha Mitra appointed to serve them.

In order to check absenteeism at government primary school, Amit Verma took the class at the house of a student who was absent, in Badagaon, Jhansi, UP | EXPRESS

On Wednesday, while Verma was teaching 4th-grade students, he noticed that two students, Meena and Gajraj, were absent. Both had not attended classes for several weeks. Initially, he sent a few students to their homes to bring them to school, but their parents objected.

The parents explained that their children were helping them with labor work in another village. Verma had visited the absent students' homes three times, but to no avail.

Disheartened by the parents' response, he took nearly 33 students who were present in the class and went to Meena and Gajraj's home at around 10 am. He set up his class in front of their house and started teaching.

This attracted residents from the area, and the small gathering gradually grew into a large crowd.

Some from the crowd ridiculed the teacher, suggesting that it was not worthwhile to send children to school when they had to share the burden of their parents' income. However, Verma was undeterred and continued teaching the students on the roadside.

After some time, the parents of both children approached Verma and apologized. They promised to send their children to school regularly.

Verma believes that it is essential for students to attend school daily to meet the 'Nipun Lakshya,' a standard set by the government to assess students' learning.

In fact, a video of the teacher conducting the class in front of the students' home is going viral on social media. Verma plans to share the video in teachers' groups to encourage similar efforts to ensure student attendance.

"The teacher's effort is praiseworthy. It will not only encourage students to attend school but also inspire parents to send their children regularly," said Manoj Lakshakar, Block Education Officer of Badagaon.

Core sector up 12% in Aug; highest in 14 mnths

Driven by low base effect and double-digit growth in coal, natural gas, refinery products, cement and electricity

MONIKA YADAV @ New Delhi

DEFYING the negative sentiments and global headwinds, India's core sectors displayed strong performance in August.

The core sector -- consisting of eight key infrastructure sectors -- saw a growth of 12.1% in August, which is the highest in 14 months, the government data revealed. This growth was primarily driven by a low base effect and double-digit growth in five of the sectors. In comparison, the core sector had grown by only 4.2% in August last year. The July 2023 data was revised slightly upwards to 8.4% from the earlier estimate of 8%, according to the government.

While the growth in fertilizers and steel slowed down, coal, natural gas, refinery products, cement, and electricity recorded significant growth in August. Five of the core sector industries namely coal (17.9%, 14-month high), natural gas (10.0%, 18-month high), steel (10.9%), cement (18.9%, nine-month high), electricity (14.9%, 14-month high) registered double digit y-o-y growth in August 2023. In addition, output of refinery products was also up 9.5% in August 2023, a 14-month high. However, crude oil production remained stable at 2.1% growth. Analysts attributed the strong growth in the core sector to the dry spell of monsoon as well as high capex spending by the government.

"The solid growth in cement and electricity sectors also got support from the dry spell of monsoon in August 2023 (monsoon was 36.2% below normal at the all-India level). The output in these sectors does get impacted by monsoon rainfall which puts a break on construction activity and reduces the demand for power. The buoyant growth in cement and steel sectors is getting sustained support from government capex," said Sunil Kumar Sinha and Paras Jasrai of India Ratings and Research.

The eight core industries have a significant impact on the Index of Industrial Production (IIP), accounting for 40.27% of its weighting.

"Given the uptick in the core sector growth, as well as healthy performance of high frequency indicators such as auto output, GST e-way bills, rail freight etc., we forecast the IIP to expand by 9-11% in the month of August 2023," Aditi Nayar, Chief Economist, Head - Research & Outreach, ICRA Ltd, said.

Solid growth in cement and electricity got support from dry spell of monsoon in August — Sunil Kumar Sinha and Paras Jasrai of India Ratings

Fiscal deficit in Apr-Aug at 36% of FY24 target

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

BUOYED by strong tax collection in August, government's fiscal deficit numbers showed muted growth during the month.

In the first five months of the financial year, Centre's fiscal deficit reached ₹6.4 lakh crore, or 36% of the full-year target, moderately higher than ₹5.4 lakh crore in the first five months of FY23. A year-on-year drop in amount of tax devolution to the states in August also helped containing the monthly increment in the fiscal deficit to a low ₹37,200 crore.

As per experts, in the first five months of FY24, gross tax revenue rose 16.52%, surpassing the expected growth. The cumulative monthly corporate tax collection, which was initially negative until July 2023, has now become positive and exceeds the projected growth. Apart from union excise duties, all other tax revenue categories have shown higher growth than anticipated.

JKC completes ₹350 cr infusion in Jet Airways

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

IN a fresh lease of hope for the revival of grounded airline Jet Airways, the Jalan Kalrock Consortium (JKC), the new promoters of the airline, on Friday said it has completed an additional fund infusion of ₹100 crore.

With this infusion, JKC claims it has fulfilled its total financial commitment of ₹350 crore as per the court-approved resolution plan. The consortium added that all commitments by them now stand fulfilled to take control of the airline.

However, it is not confirmed immediately that the lenders are satisfied with this payment and are willing to hand over the ownership of the airline. JKC said its strategy to revive the airline remains unaltered and they aim to re-establish the operations of the airline up and running in 2024.

This fresh fund infusion comes after the National Company Law Appellate Tribunal (NCLAT) had last month extended the time till September 30 for JKC to pay a sum of ₹350 crore to the lenders of the bankrupt Jet Airways.

However, the big task of flying Jet Airways again won't be an easy affair. Mark Martin, founder and CEO of Martin Consulting, said it is a good sign that the consortium has shown intent to revive the airline but they require a large amount of working capital to commence operations. They also require fleet induction, hiring of pilots and crew and senior management.

It is almost like starting a new airline from scratch

Mark Martin, founder and chief executive officer of Martin Consulting

"It is almost like starting a new airline from scratch," said Martin. He estimates a working capital need of about ₹2,000 crore for any party to start the airline and meet all the necessary operational costs.

After a lengthy bankruptcy proceeding, the the National Company Law Tribunal (NCLT) in June 2021 gave approval to the Kalrock Capital and Murari Lal Jalan consortium's bid for Jet Airways, eight months after the lenders had given a go-ahead to its resolution plan. It first intended to restart operations in 2022.

Online sellers expect 15% jump in sales during upcoming festive season

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ Bengaluru

IN the upcoming festive sales, sellers expect at least 15% online sales growth compared to the last year's sale event, said Redseer Strategy Consultants in its latest report.

It surveyed sellers, primarily smaller sellers prior to the festive sales, and found that despite modest sales growth on e-commerce platforms recently, anticipation for a sales boost among the sellers is high across categories.

Only 40% of sellers it surveyed reported more than 10% increase in current quarter sales. Also, sellers across categories are bullish about growth trajectory.

Ecommerce platforms are tailoring solutions to meet the optimism of sellers and as a consequence of which seller perceptions around support provided by etailing platforms have seen an uptick, with 62% of sellers agreeing to the sentiment that the platforms have been supportive in their festive planning compared to 53% sellers who observed this in the lead-up to the last year's festive season, the report added.

Sellers have also highlighted the strong support received from platforms in terms of data analytics, trends predictions, consumer visibility, among others. "Our interactions with sellers prior to this 10th ecommerce festive season reaffirms the transformative impact ecommerce has on these MSMEs. The festive period is expected to enable sellers, especially the smaller ones, to come out of the challenging sales environment and sellers are optimistic of strong sales growth," said Mrigank Gutgutia, Partner at Redseer Strategy Consultants. Sellers are willing to ramp up their advertising spending on the ecommerce platforms during this festive period. Smaller sellers anticipate a 22% ad spend growth compared to the last festive season.

Overall, across the surveyed sellers, they anticipate a 15% spending growth compared to last year's festive season and 50% ad spending growth compared to business as usual (BAU) periods of this year, the report added.

Vedanta splits into six firms; entities to be listed on bourses

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

METALS-TO-OILS conglomerate Vedanta Ltd on Friday announced the demerger of its commodities businesses into five separate companies to unlock value and attract investment.

The company plans to list all the five demerged entities on the bourses. The six firms after the demerger will be – Vedanta Aluminium, Vedanta Oil and Gas, Vedanta Power, Vedanta Steel and Ferrous Materials, Vedanta Base Metals and Vedanta Limited. Currently, only Vedanata Ltd and Hindustan Zinc Ltd are listed firms.

After the demerger, the semiconductor business and HZL will be housed under Vedanta Ltd, Balco will be housed under Vedanta Aluminium. Cairn Energy will be under Vedanta Oil and Gas. The company said the move will provide opportunities to global investors, including sovereign wealth funds, retail investors and strategic investors, with direct investment opportunities in dedicated companies.

"By demerging our business units, we believe that will unlock value and potential for faster growth in each vertical. While they all come under the larger umbrella of natural resources, each has their own market, demand and supply trends, and potential to deploy technology to raise productivity," said Anil Agarwal, Chairman of Vedanta Limited.

It said the de-merger is planned to be a simple vertical split, for every one share of Vedanta Limited, shareholders will receive one share of each of the five newly listed firms.

Vedanta is into diverse businesses that include metals and minerals, oil and gas and power. Now the company has plans to foray into manufacturing semiconductors and display glass. Vedanta is of the view that once demerged, each independent entity will have greater freedom to grow to its potential and true value via an independent management, capital allocation and niche strategies for growth.

Vedanta Ltd has been battling high debt with its parent company – Vedanta Resources Ltd – facing $3.6 billion debt repayments in the next two years. As of March 2023, Vedanta's debt/EBITDA stood at 3.7 times. Moreover, rating agencies Moody's InvestorsService and S&P recently downgraded Vedanta Resources to speculative grade, meaning the company needs favourable business conditions to be able to make repayment of debts. In August 2023, Vedanta Resources sold a 4.3% stake in key subsidiary Vedanta Limited for around $500 million to stave off some of the pressure arising from the holdco's imminent cash needs.

THAILAND

PM SEEKS FTA EXPANSION TO LURE FOREIGN INVESTORS

Thailand's new prime minister said on Friday he was committed to transforming the country into a major foreign investment destination, including pursuing more free trade deals and expanding manufacturing of both electric and traditional autos. Srettha said his government would improve infrastructure and water management, upgrade airports to boost tourism, expand free trade agreements (FTA) to compete with neighbours, and make it easier for companies to hire more foreign workers in Thailand. Thailand has lagged its peers in pursuing trade pacts with major markets, with complications ranging from allegations of protectionism and migrant labour abuse, plus political upheaval stemming from governments being forced from power. The prime minister stressed foreign policy would be neutral and not take sides with the United States and China, adding that Japan was a major power that Thailand was committed to, given its long history as the country's top investor.

CHINA

IMF SEES SIGNS ECONOMY STABILISING

The International Monetary Fund (IMF) has said China's economy is showing signs of stabilising, but it believes the country can accelerate growth over the medium term if it takes steps to reform its economy to rebalance from investment toward consumer spending. Julie Kozack, Chief spokesperson at IMF, told in a news briefing that it still believes China can achieve nearly 5% growth this year. IMF sees GDP growth of the country slowing to about 3.5% over the medium term, but this can be accelerated with economic reforms. There is also a debt overhang from a decades-long infrastructure binge and depressed private firms have been reluctant to invest. Some analysts see growing risk that the country will drift into an era of Japan-like stagnation with an aging population and slowing productivity growth. Slowdown in China has some government advisers in Beijing calling for deeper reforms, while others are advocating more robust state spending to bolster growth.

JAPAN

COUNTRY MUST ENSURE END TO DEFLATION: MINISTER

Japan's economy minister Yoshitaka Shindo on Friday said the country must ensure that the economy will not slide back into deflation again, suggesting there is still a risk of returning to the state of falling prices. "Japan's economy is no longer in deflation," he told reporters in an interview. The country is seeing rising inflation in recent years. The country is facing the challenge of falling yen. Japanese finance minister Shunichi Suzuki on Tuesday said all options are on the table in countering excessive movements in the currency market, continuing his verbal warnings as the yen edges closer to 150 against the U.S. dollar. Suzuki said the monetary authorities of Japan and other countries share the view that excessive volatility is undesirable, and the government is closely watching market developments with a heightened sense of urgency.

TCS asks employees to work from office 5 days week from next month

UMA KANNAN @ Bengaluru

THE country's largest IT services company Tata Consultancy Services has mandated many of its employees who are working on certain projects to work from office for five days a week starting next month.

Earlier, the company had asked its workforce to attend office for three days a week. When asked about it, TCS said it would not be able to comment as it is in the silent period. The company will announce its second quarter of FY 24 results on October 11. The company has been stressing on the work-from-office model, as in its FY23 annual report, the company had said it was gradually bringing back people to offices during the year.

"Work from home is definitely more convenient for everybody, but there were drawbacks...Workplace essentials like collaboration, mentorship and team building suffered a lot in these two years," Milind Lakkad, chief human resources officer, said in the annual report. He also termed higher attrition among women as "unusual". "I would think WFH during the pandemic reset the domestic arrangements for some women, keeping them from returning to office even after everything normalised," he said. Kamal Karanth, co-founder of staffing firm Xpheno, said permanent hybrid or extended work from home on a large scale have an inherent inefficiency that will hit an organisation, irrespective of size and maturity. "These are arrangements designed for exceptions and short-term flexibility. Return to office is inevitable and non-negotiable for enterprises seeking higher efficiency and tighter organisation building process. Employees who have redrawn their lifestyle and personal ecosystem to hybrid will find it dysfunctional to be back at office," he said.

However, back to office is the new norm and employees have to recalibrate themselves. With respect to TCS , it is an interesting and intriguing development in the backdrop of their 25 by 2025 model, he added.

Indian cos should go global, change size and scale: Shah

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

HOME minister Amit Shah on Friday said this is need of the hour that Indian companies go multinational and change both the size and scale.

Addressing the 118th annual session of the PHD Chamber of Commerce and Industry (PHDCCI), the minister said the network of small industries along with big industries will have to be strengthened, and the chamber will have to come forward strongly to provide guidance and infrastructure in this. He said the chamber will have to create an ecosystem so that youths, women and MSMEs can get maximum benefits from the policies of the government.

Shah said the PHDCCI has a decisive role in taking the country's industries to new heights in the Amrit Kaal of the next 25 years, i.e., the period between the 75th anniversary of Independence and the centenary. The biggest achievement in these 75 years has been that India as a country has succeeded in deepening the roots of democracy, adding the country has shown the world that governance in terms of policy is a continuous process.

The minister added that according to the principle of "Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam", India is leading the world in solving global problems across all sectors.

Now the world is looking towards India in all areas including fight against terrorism, solar alliance, green energy etc. and many of our initiatives are guiding the world today, he said. Shah said India has secured its place in all the sectors like green hydrogen, semiconductors, electric vehicles, solar energy, defence, drones, space, mining and green fuel ethanol, which are going to impact the world economy for the next 25 years.

Two-time world champion Nikhat marches into semifinals to secure Olympic quota

HEAVY MEDAL

Indias Nikhat Zareen (blue) in action against Jordan's Nassar Hanan in Hangzhou, China on Friday | PTI

ANMOL GURUNG @ Chennai

1082 days, 18 hours, 11 minutes, 44 seconds. Nikhat Zareen had posted a picture of herself looking at the above-mentioned countdown timer to the Paris Olympics just hours after the close of Tokyo Olympics. The message was crystal clear. Having missed the Tokyo bus primarily due to the colossal presence of MC Mary Kom, the boxer from Telangana had already set her heart on Paris.

A little over two years later, Nikhat has realized her goal. That too in a dominant fashion. The 27-year-old made light work of Hanan Nassar of Jordan to march into the 50kg semifinals of the ongoing Asian Games in Hangzhou (China) on Friday, thereby becoming the first pugilist from the country to secure an Olympic quota. Taking part in her third bout in the event, Nikhat pocketed the bout by RSC verdict (Referee Stops the Contest) in the very first round. Four boxers in her weight category will walk away with Olympic quotas apart from medals.

She might be making things look straightforward but this feat has come after years of toil. Nikhat's father Mohammad Jameel Ahmad has endured all those hurdles along with her. "I'm very happy. Even though the opponent (on the day) was not so strong, it's a big win as she has qualified for the Olympics. There's prestige (in taking part in the Olympics). Our mission was to qualify for the Olympics and we have achieved that. We want to thank everyone (coaches, federation) who has helped her achieve the same," he said.

Nikhat rose through the ranks by winning medals at the junior and youth levels. Her talent was evident, but she had to be patient after reaching the elite level. Mary Kom, who's considered the legend of the sport, was still occupying her favoured position and was not showing any signs of slowing down. However, Nikhat was aware that she needed to persevere and her time would come. It was not the first time she was facing hurdles. She had overcome bouts with gender stereotypes in her salad days. Initially questioned by people in her surroundings for picking up the sport, she had come a long way since those early days of resistance.

"It (those days) was difficult. We knew she had age on her side. She has the time and she can compete in the 2028 Olympics. Secondly, there's more options as there's a new weight category," Jameel recalled.

After Mary stepped aside, she has become synonymous with Indian boxing. Two back-to-back world titles, Commonwealth Games gold, Nikhat has grown from strength-to-strength in the last two years or so. Friday's outcome was inevitable. This run she's had is uncommon, especially in a sport that is as rigorous as boxing. According to her father, her single-minded focus is something that has pushed her. "In her mind, the only thing is to qualify for the Olympics and get a medal for her country. Everyday she thinks about that and that has been her main ambition," Jameel noted.

National chief coach CA Kuttappa, who is currently part of her journey in Asiad, also highlighted Nikhat's hunger and determination. "For many years she has had that hunger and drive. She's making it count. She is filled with positivity and she's a perfect example on how an athlete should be. We're all delighted," Kuttappa told this daily from Hangzhou.

Another person who has been influential in her rise is former national chief coach Bhaskar Bhatt. Bhatt could not hide his emotions on Friday. "Very happy. Nikhat has achieved her target. She is mentally very strong and is very dedicated. She is very determined and has a strong contender to medal at the Olympics," he said.

Nikhat's immediate test is Raksat Chuthamat of Thailand, an opponent she had met during the quarterfinal stage of the Delhi World Championships. Her father is hopeful that she can go all the way and also has his eyes set on Paris. "We'll have to devise a new plan as the opponents would have studied her game by now. We'll do an analysis about her potential opponents during the Olympics."

Those small details are things that could help her make history come 2024.

Parveen through

Parveen Hooda is one step away from emulating Nikhat after she beat China's Xu Zichun in the Round of 16. Parveen (57kg) beat Xu 5-0 and can secure a quota if she wins her next bout.

Nikhat Zareen had posted this on social media soon after the Tokyo Olympics

Badminton: Indian men assured of medal

India thrashed lowly Nepal 3-0 in the quarterfinals to secure a historic medal after 37 years in the men's team badminton event. Shooting stars continue to twinkle, make history

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Chennai

THE Fuyang Yinhu Sports Centre has been witness to a record-setting, history-making bunch of Indian shooters over the last week. Friday was no different as the country continued its medal rush in the range across disciplines. If the sport witnessed a hard reset following the disappointment of Tokyo, Hangzhou is the first signs that the sport is on the right track.

Five medals — two gold, as many silver and a bronze — came in a manic morning session. It included repeat medals for Esha Singh, who now has four. Palak Gulia walked with an individual gold in the women's 10m air pistol, a discipline that gave India its first 1-2 of these Games. A few hours after Palak and Esha were clicking pictures, Aishwary Pratap Singh Tomar, already well acquainted with the podium steps at the range, won a fine silver in the men's 50m rifle 3 positions. In the morning, he had helped India win the first gold of the day in the team event.

In what will go down in history as one of the most remarkable performances of the Games,

Pistol shooters Esha Singh (L) & Palak celebrate their 1-2 finish on Friday | PTI

Palak and Esha outshot the two Chinese shooters (Ranxin Jiang and Nan Zhao). In the end, they finished outside the medals (third went to Pakistan's Kishmala Talat). While it's true that Ranxin and Nan didn't have the greatest of days (they began with 47.7 and 48.6, respectively), Esha and Palak gave themselves the best opportunity to reach for the stars. Palak had a score of 9.1 in her first shot but recovered remarkably well. "I was a bit nervous after that, thinking obviously like what I hit. But I then said it's not over, it's the first shot, you have 23 more shots to go," she said after winning gold.

Seema by her side, Kiran shines

INDRANEEL DAS @ Chennai

IF the Asian Games were held last year, Kiran Baliyan would have been just another athlete shrouded in obscurity. Leave alone winning a medal but until a few months ago, she was even not part of the national camp and was not supposed to travel to Hangzhou for the Games. Athletics Federation of India has a very strict policy of an athlete being part of a national camp to be considered for national team. The Indian hurled 17.38m to finish behind China's Olympic champion Lijioa Gong, who threw 19.58m, and Jiayuan Song (18.92m). Kiran needed the third throw to be among medallists while compatriot and national record holder Manpreet Kaur finished fifth.

Yet, on a day when the tracks and the throwing pits were soaked in rain water, Kiran managed to win India their first medal in athletics at the Games. Former Asian and Commonwealth Games medallist Seema Antil has been an integral figure in her life. She has been supporting her for quite some time and it was Seema who thought Kiran should join the national camp before being considered for the national team. With Seema on the stands, Kiran shone. Seema told her to keep her cool and try cross 17m, which she thought could fetch a medal.

What seems interesting is that Kiran wanted to be a javelin thrower but her coach Robin Singh, who, like her, also hails from Meerut, advised her to take up shot put. "Her physique was suited more for shot put than javelin," Robin told this daily from Meerut. Unlike most athletes, Kiran is apparently good in studies too. "She is good in studies and completed her post graduation in physical education," said Robin, who is her coach since 2014.

However, Robin said that if not for Seema it would have been difficult for Kiran to excel. "Seema 'didi hain'. She helped her with everything – guiding her In training, helping her with nutrition and supplements and even money if need be for sport," said Robin. "She also used to look into her weight training and advise us accordingly. The Athletics Federation of India also helped her to be in the camp and now she is training there as well. The federation too has done a lot."

Seema, on the other hand, did not want to speak much about her contribution saying the coach was working well with her. "Whenever someone youngsters ask you about training and advice, it's my duty to help," Seema told this daily from Hangzhou. "So I told her what is needed to motivate her, where she needs to throw and how... so that she wins medals, what distance she needs to clear. Basically, sharing my experience with her. I hope I can continue to help youngsters and help them qualify for Olympics."

Like most athletes in the country, it had not been all smooth for Kiran either.

'Inexperience in India will only spur Pakistan'

FIROZ MIRZA @ Hyderabad

AMONG the current Pakistan team comprising 15 players and three travelling reserves, only two - Mohammad Nawaz and Salman Ali Agha - have travelled to India in the past. The former travelled with the team during the 2016 T20 World Cup but didn't get a game while the latter represented Lahore Lions only in one Champions League match against Dolphins.

Given the duo's experience in the country, Wahab Riaz, who too hardly played cricket on the Indian soil ever since his international debut in 2008, looks an experienced pro. Wahab, who recently retired from international cricket, had played one ODI and three T20Is in India. All three T20Is were during the 2016 T20 mega event while his only ODI was the famous World Cup match against India in Mohali. He bowled an excellent spell claiming 5/46 from his 10 overs including the wickets of Virender Sehwag, Virat Kohli, Yuvraj Singh and MS Dhoni. The inexperience of playing in Indian conditions can be a factor when the Babar Azam-led side begins its World Cup campaign here at the Rajiv Gandhi International Cricket Stadium in Uppal, Hyderabad on October 6 against the Netherlands.

Pakistan's Mohammad Rizwan scored a 94-ball 103 against New Zealand in the World Cup warm-up fixture in Hyderabad on Friday | SRI LOGANATHAN VELMURUGAN

Wahab, too, feels the way but asserts that it will only spur the team to perform better. "Playing in India is something else. Almost all the members of the current team including Babar have not played in India so that pressure will be there especially with such a big crowd in attendance. But overall the Pakistan team is known to perform better whenever it is under pressure. I believe they will come out with a good performance," Wahab told this daily from Pakistan.

The Men in Green entered the recently-concluded Asia Cup as the favourites. They attained the numero uno status in the ODI just before the tournament and were expected to go all the way given their past two-and-half-a-month experience of playing in Sri Lanka, which co-hosted the tournament. Despite the favourite tag, they bowed out losing to both India and Sri Lanka. However, Wahab believes that it will have no bearing in the World Cup. "The World Cup is a different ball game and one cannot predict Pakistan's show in it on the basis of their not so commendable performance in the Asia Cup. They have a balanced squad and can go the distance if they perform to their potential."

The 1992 champions, who were taking on New Zealand in their first warm-up match in Hyderabad on Friday, are known to produce quality pacers and rely heavily on their fearsome bowling attack. But the Asia Cup turned out from bad to worse when they lost pacer Naseem Shah, who sustained a shoulder injury. Wahab admits Naseem's absence is a big blow but adds Hasan Ali is the perfect replacement. "Indian conditions will suit Hasan as he swings the ball and gets reverse sw ing as well. He did that for Pakistan during the Champions Trophy in the past and has the potential to do it again in the marquee event," said the 38-year-old left-arm pacer.

He is of the opinion that the Pakistan middle and lower order batters have to contribute as relying merely on bowling will not do them a favour. "It's not the case with the Pakistan squad. Almost every team has top order batters, who can win matches for it but in such a big tournament, the middle and lower-order batters have to score."

Indian-Americans condemn hate crimes against Hindus in Canada

OTTAWA

A group of eminent Indian-Americans has condemned the brazen hateful comments and a hostile environment against Hindus in Canada and asked Ottawa not to mix freedom of expression with freedom for terror and endorse hate crimes by being silent on the issue.

The demand by Indian-Americans came after an offensive video from a pro-Khalistan group threatening Hindus in Canada to leave the country went viral.

"It is concerning to see Khalistani terrorists repeatedly threaten Hindu Canadians by desecrating and scarring Hindu sacred spaces on Canadian soil. Silence in the face of such brazen Hinduphobia — or worse, the justification that this is an acceptable form of political expression — is tantamount to the endorsement of hate crimes," said Professor Indu Vishwanathan, co-founder and co-director of the Understanding Hinduphobia at the Hindu University of America.

"The Canadian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau should not mix freedom of expression with freedom for terror. He should instead stop radicalisation, and drug gangs and diplomatically handle international situations," Khanderao Kand, from the Foundation for India and Indian Diaspora Studies (FIIDS), said in a media statement.

The Khalistani video surfaced days after Trudeau's allegations on September 18 of the "potential' involvement of Indian agents in the killing of Khalistani extremist Hardeep Singh Nijjar, a Canadian citizen, on Canadian soil on June 18. India rejected Trudeau's allegations as 'absurd'. PTI

Suicide bombers target procession marking birthday of Prophet Mohammed in Balochistan, attack mosque in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa

ISLAMABAD

A powerful suicide blast ripped through a mosque in Pakistan's restive Balochistan province on Friday, killing at least 54 people and injuring over 100 others who were preparing to celebrate Prophet Muhammad's birthday, police said.

A second suicide attack by two men at a mosque hundreds of kilometres north in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa province led to a roof collapse that killed four people, officials said.

While the celebration of the Prophet's birthday is accepted by the majority of Islamic sects in Pakistan and elsewhere in the Muslim world, it is seen as heretical and unwarranted innovation by extremist groups like the Islamic State.

In southwestern Balochistan, officials said a suicide bomber detonated a device as rallies from neighbourhood mosques converged on a meeting point in Mastung, around 40 kilometres south of the provincial capital, Quetta.

"My feet trembled and I was thrown to the ground," 49-year-old Hazoor Bakhsh told journalists.

"As the dust settled, I saw people scattered in all directions, some screaming while others called out for help."

Local hospitals were overwhelmed by the number of wounded, and provincial authorities used social media platforms to appeal for blood donors. Every year, mosques and government buildings are elaborately illuminated with strings of lights, and people march in processions to mark the Prophet's birthday.

On the same occasion in April 2006, a suicide bomber killed at least 50 people in Karachi after detonating a device at a Sunni gathering.

Friday's blast comes as Pakistan prepares for an election due in January next year — while grappling with a political crisis, a crippled economy, and a surge in militant violence inspired by the return to power of the Taliban in Afghanistan.

Jan Achakzai, Balochistan's minister for information, announced a three-day mourning period. Balochistan, Pakistan's least populous province, is also home to several militant groups fighting for independence or a greater share of the region's mineral resources.

Interim Interior Minister Sarfraz Ahmed Bugti also strongly condemned the blast. Stating that 'terrorists have no faith or religion', Bugti asserted all resources were being put to use during the rescue operation. He added no effort would be spared in treating the injured and that terrorist elements did not deserve any concession. Agencies

Sharif to address rally in Lahore on day of return

ISLAMABAD

FORMER Pakistan prime minister Nawaz Sharif would appear in a court a day after addressing a rally at the Minar-e-Pakistan in Lahore upon his return from self-imposed exile in London on October 21, according to a media report on Friday.

Sharif, the 73-year-old Pakistan Muslim League-Nawaz (PML-N) supremo, will kick off the election campaign of his party after a rally at the Minar-e-Pakistan. "After appearing at the rally and announcing the final manifesto of the party, Nawaz Sharif will appear in court the next day," the Pakistan Observer said.

The announcement (by Sanaullah) comes a day after Pakistan's anti-graft body said it is reopening at least four corruption cases against Nawaz Sharif coinciding with his scheduled return.

Nawaz had left the country in November 2019 on medical grounds after the Lahore High Court granted him bail for four weeks. He was serving a seven-year imprisonment in the Al-Azizia Mills corruption case at Kot Lakhpat Jail Lahore.

Sanaullah was addressing a consultative meeting at Gujranwala, about 100 km north of Lahore, on Thursday.

Nawaz Sharif

Pakistan was on the path to prosperity when it was abruptly thrust into crisis for the third time, Sanaullah said and added, "The country can overcome its crisis by following the path laid out by Nawaz Sharif."

In the light of a Supreme Court ruling that struck down amendments made to the accountability laws by the previous Pakistan Democratic Movement (PDM) government, led by Nawaz's younger brother Shehbaz Sharif, Pakistan's National Accountability Bureau (NAB) is reopening four pending probes against Nawaz.

The cases are related to illegal plots and land allotment, dubious transfer of shares of his sugar mills and Toshakhana (national treasury gifts). Two cases relate to misusing his authority for allotting plots and illegal construction of a road in 1986 and 1998 respectively. PTI

Imran involved in orchestrating violence: Probe

LAHORE

PAKISTAN'S jailed former prime minister Imran Khan and several top leaders of his party were directly involved in orchestrating the unprecedented anti-government violence on May 9, a joint investigation team has informed an anti-terrorism court here.

A Joint Investigation Team (JIT) was constituted to probe the violence in Punjab province following the arrest of Khan, the chairman of the Pakistan Tehreek-e-Insaf (PTI) party in connection with a corruption case on May 9.

The JIT headed by DIG Operations Imran Kishwar on Thursday submitted chargesheets against PTI leaders and hundreds of workers before an anti-terrorism court, reported the Dawn newspaper on Friday.

According to Lahore police, Khan and over 900 other party leaders and activists named in the May 9 cases have been "declared guilty of serious offences", the report said. PTI

70% of Karabakh's original population has fled

YEREVAN

MORE than 70% of Nagorno-Karabakh's original population has fled to Armenia, authorities said, as the region's separatist government said it would dissolve itself, and the unrecognised republic inside Azerbaijan would cease to exist by year's end after a three-decade bid for independence.

Armenian officials said that 84,770 people had left Nagorno-Karabakh by Friday morning, continuing a mass exodus from the region of ethnic Armenians that began Sunday.

The region's population was around 1,20,000 before the exodus began.

The moves came after Azerbaijan carried out a lightning offensive last week to reclaim full control over the breakaway region and demanded that Armenian troops in Nagorno-Karabakh disarm and the separatist government disband.

Armenian refugees arrive in Goris city centre in Armenia on Friday | AFP

A decree signed by the region's separatist president, Samvel Shakhramanyan, cited a September 20 agreement to end the fighting under which Azerbaijan will allow the 'free, voluntary and unhindered movement' of Nagorno-Karabakh's residents to Armenia.

Some people lined up for days to get out of Nagorno-Karabakh as the only road to Armenia quickly filled up with vehicles, creating a major traffic jam on the winding mountain road.

Armenian Health Minister Anahit Avanesyan said that some people, including the elderly, had died while on the road to Armenia, because they were "exhausted due to malnutrition, left without even taking medicine with them, and were on the road for more than 40 hours." Some of those who fled the regional capital, Stepanakert, said they had no hope for the future.

"I left Stepanakert having a slight hope that maybe something will change and I will come back soon, and these hopes are ruined after reading about the dissolution of our government," 21-year-old student Ani Abaghyan told The Associated Press. AP

Former aide of Prigozhin to oversee Russia's volunteer fighters in Ukraine

MOSCOW

RUSSIAN President Vladimir Putin has tasked a former aide of late Wagner chief Yevgeny Prigozhin to oversee volunteer fighter units in Ukraine, according to a Kremlin statement on Friday.

"At the last meeting we talked about you overseeing the formation of volunteer units that can carry out various tasks, first and foremost of course in the zone of the special military operation," Putin was quoted as saying to Andrei Troshev, using Moscow's name for its offensive in Ukraine.

The meeting, also attended by Russian Deputy Defence Minister Yunus-Bek Yevkurov, underlined the integration of fighters from the mercenary Wagner Group into Russia's regular military force in the wake of Prigozhin's aborted mutiny in June.

Prigozhin, the head of the Wagner mercenary group, died with nine other people when a plane flying from Moscow to Saint Petersburg crashed on August 23. Exactly two months earlier, Prigozhin had openly challenged Russia's military high command by leading a short-lived mutiny with his fighters that threatened to spiral into civil conflict.

Andrei Troshev

Observers have said this was the most significant challenge to Putin's rule.

Prigozhin called off the rebellion after apparently striking a deal with the Kremlin through the mediation of Belarus but he faced no criminal prosecution.

Troshev, a retired colonel known by the nickname "Sedoi" (Gray-haired), hails from Putin's hometown of Saint Petersburg and is a decorated veteran of Kremlin military campaigns in Afghanistan, Chechnya and Syria.

He was one of the leaders of the Wagner Group in Syria, for which the European Union put him on its sanctions list in December 2021.

Meanwhile, Putin said that Russian prisoners who died in Ukraine had redeemed themselves in the eyes of society.

To boost regular troops fighting in Ukraine, the army and mercenary group Wagner have extensively recruited from Russian penal colonies.

"They are dead," Putin said during a televised meeting, referring to prisoners who died in Ukraine. "Everyone can make some mistakes, they once did. But they gave their lives for the Motherland, and fully redeemed themselves," Putin said at the meeting with servicemen who fought near Ukraine's Urozhaine on the southern front. After a short discussion with the soldiers, Putin observed a minute of silence to honour the prisoners who died in combat. AFP

SEATTLE CAR CRASH

Cop taken off duty over joke on Indian girl's death

SEATTLE

A Seattle Police officer, who joked about the horrific death of a 23-year-old Indian student earlier this year, has been pulled off patrol duty, weeks after the South Asian community demanded action against him.

Jaahnavi Kandula was killed by an over-speeding police car while crossing a street in January. The department Thursday confirmed by email that Officer Daniel Auderer "has been administratively reassigned to a non-operational position," The Seattle Times reported.

Auderer was a member of the SPD's traffic squad and vice president of the Seattle Police Officers Guild. The police department had released footage from a body-cam earlier this month in which Auderer can be seen laughing about the deadly crash and dismissed any implication that another officer, Kevin Dave, might be at fault.

Dave was responding to a report of an overdose and driving at about 119 kmph in a 40 kmph zone when he struck Kandula, who was thrown more than 100 feet. The video footage showed Auderer, who was involved in the investigation, calling Kandula a "regular person". "She was 26 anyway," he said, misstating Kandula's age. "She had limited value," Auderer is seen as saying. The King County Prosecuting Attorney's Office is reviewing the case, considering whether to pursue charges, The Seattle Times report said.

US government teeters on brink of shutdown

The US government was on the verge of a shutdown on Friday as Congress struggled to reach a deal to keep agencies running, prevent national park closures, and avoid the suspension of salaries for federal employees

STOPGAP FUNDING

- In the current clash over funding the government, the debate has centered on whether Congress should use stopgap funding legislation to keep government offices running and paychecks for federal employees flowing beyond Friday, when the government's fiscal year expires
- McCarthy has pushed the Republican conference to embrace the short-term funding plan that includes a sweeping Republican proposal for the southern border
- He is urging his fellow House Republicans to avoid the political pain of causing a shutdown as he tries to protect his narrow House majority. But because Republicans had such a slim majority to begin with, even a handful of holdouts can demand concessions or prevent the party from moving forward on legislation

MCCARTHY'S DILEMMA

Analysts say the government shutdown is almost inevitable

McCarthy will likely be left with the political damage of a shutdown unless he turns to Democrats for help in passing a bipartisan bill. But working with Democrats would give hard-right Republicans reason to remove him as speaker

B'luru-based Devika Rege, who was awarded the Ramnath Goenka Sahithya Samman for Best Fiction, on the storytelling & politics of Quarterlife and what a desk by a window means for her work

LATE MODERNISM COMES TO TOWN

PARAMITA GHOSH

IN Devika Rege's debut novel, Quarterlife (HarperCollins), the return to India is also a discovery of self. Naren, the older son of the upper-class Agashes, takes a flight home to Mumbai from America to be the generation that creates new wealth; the younger son, Rohit, an apolitical young man who comes to fraternise with the right-wing, is very much of his time – a time when the fictional Bharat Party is on the rise. The story is set in a year reminiscent of 2014 when the general election marked the beginning of the Hindutva turn in India's politics, social life and discourse. Rege has just been awarded the Ramnath Goenka Sahithya Samman for Best Fiction by The New Indian Express for her remarkable achievement on a book that has impressed readers with its depth and maturity and pushes the limits of what the form can achieve. Excerpts:

Sometimes a line or an image starts off a process of writing, could you tell us what it was in the case of Quarterlife.

There was no epiphany. No voice or vision that I can recall as setting everything in motion. The most memorable pivots came later, like when I first sensed the design that would anchor the story. I didn't know where each section would go, but I could sense the logic underlying them. That felt so liberating. Like I could sail away from the shore now that I had a compass.

Because of the subject of the novel, Quarterlife could have been set in a party office or within a rally. What does a typical upper-middle-class family provide in terms of a base from which things pan out in the novel?

Around 2013-14, many middle-class Indians seemed to be waking up to a new relationship with politics. People who had never voted or thought about politics beyond election day were suddenly full of opinions on what the country stood for and what democracy meant. Our political identities became more encompassing than they had ever been. I saw my friends and family respond to this change, and their psychology felt both familiar and confounding enough to respond to in my work. I chose a family that was more affluent still because the Agashes' new money and confidence seemed to epitomise the ambition and costs involved in this churn. Their privilege also allowed for creating characters who are naïve about the world that identity politics was bringing out of the fields and slums and to their doorsteps. Given the range of political positions the novel explores, I doubt it would have been possible to bring everyone to the same party office or rally.

Your overarching narrative technique is free indirect discourse – you use it to avoid narratorial editorialising in favour of a single narrating consciousness divided into three: Naren, Rohit and Amanda. What has this structural choice allowed you that other techniques would not?

It perhaps says something about our times or our relationship to truth that so many contemporary novelists resort to multiple perspectives to tell a story. For me, initially, it was an instinctive choice, as was free indirect discourse. I suppose I felt comfortable with a voice that neither ventriloquises another's I, nor assumes complete omniscience. But I wasn't thinking about any of this when I started. I was simply applying established tools to the task at hand intuitively. The idea that the structure might expand to incorporate many more voices, or collapse to suggest the limits of such a dream, were riffs on form that came later. I'm not suggesting that's how these gestures should be read, only that they were responses to feeling uncomfortable about writing a novel on democracy that is not only undemocratic but blind to the fact. The result was a dynamic in which the subject inspired changes in the form, and the form changed how I explored the subject. The two are so welded as to seem a false binary. To have employed a different structure would have resulted in a different story altogether.

Why did you create Amanda?

There are many answers to this question because the characters evolve over time and so do the writers' motivations for crafting them. At the outset, I had a sense that, through Amanda, I might explore the limits of a certain kind of liberal idealism. Her hasty judgment of a field officer accused of sexual misconduct also became a counterpoint to Rohit's decision to give a young man his friends see as a bigot the benefit of the doubt. Empathy or judgement: at what point have we gone too far in either direction when confronted with a person we feel a moral pressure to condemn? And on whose time and at whose cost do we do so? These are some of the questions that writing Amanda helped me think through.

What is the literary tradition or raison d'etre of art you avow?

As a teen, I discovered Dostoevsky in my father's books and his work defined the terrain of the novel for me, especially with its interest in perspective and ethics. Later, the modernists gave me the idea that form might derive from sources other than storytelling traditions. Form inspired by consciousness will always be, if not new, then at least a challenge to any traditional form. Bernhard, Sebald, Coetzee, and Lispector are some authors I've loved. Tarkovsky in cinema, but also his writing on the art of cinema. To be honest, it is hard to claim or quantify how literary influence works. You can love an author whose writing is nothing like yours. You can be influenced by writers you have never read because the writers you have read were influenced by them. Sometimes, I think it is best left to academics to identify such traces and draw up family trees.

What are you working on next and what are the kinds of books you want to write and like to read?

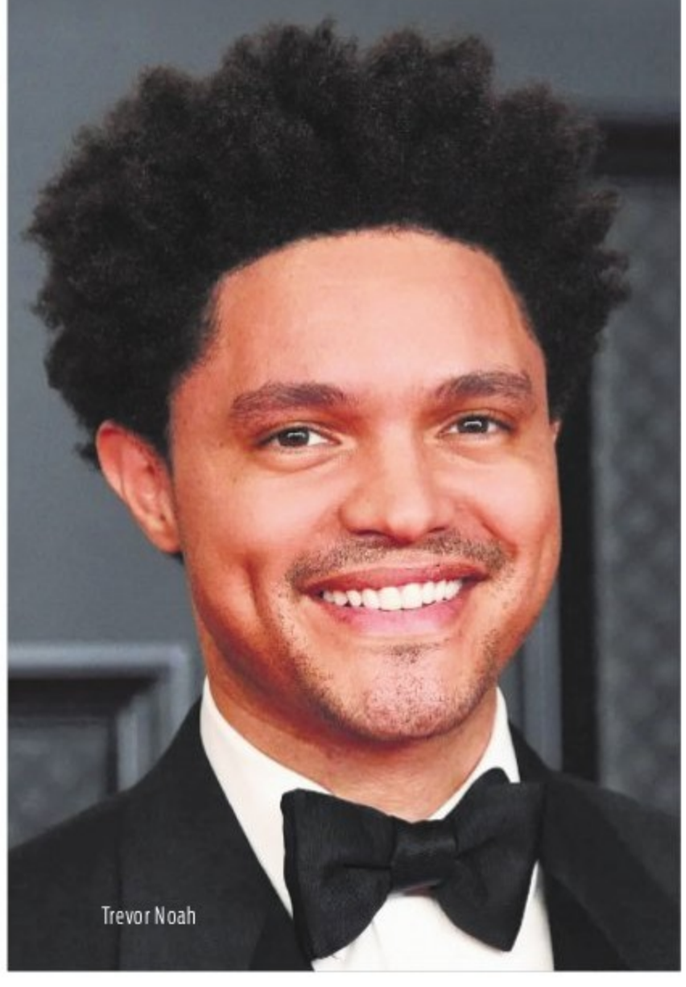
Another novel, though I don't know at this stage if it will grow into anything I'd like to publish. When you think of the innumerable details on every page of a novel, three or four hundred pages is such an immense canvas – more than that of any other art form. The novels I've loved best are those that use this scope to push against the author's limits or the limits of the form.

Do you have a writing ritual?

Not really, no. I like writing in libraries if that counts. I spent a lot of my teens in a government hostel, so the sparseness and monkish air of a public study hall feels familiar, even comforting. If you come in early, you can get a desk beside a window. The scene is so impersonal as to be eloquent. I find that the perfect state of mind for my work.

Murphy's law – Anything that can go wrong will go wrong – played out in full public view turning comedian Trevor Noah's live standup show into a spectacle. Post the abrupt cancellation of both shows, artistes tell Dese Gowda what it takes to put together a live performance

Watching a nightmare unfold



Trevor Noah

KIRTANA KUMAR, thespian

I was just shocked that nobody did a soundcheck prior to the show. The organisers pulled a scam on the city. Everyone knows about Bengaluru's traffic woes, it's not new. And ensuring that the venue is suitably equipped is a basic priority that they didn't manage to get right. Meanwhile, the space appears not at all suited for events like that. There are plenty of other spaces in the city that are better suited to standup comedy than a convention centre. If the priority was to sell as many tickets as possible, the minimum they could have done was to ensure that they soundproof the floors, and got the acoustics right at the same venue. The entire organisation seems ridiculous.

RAGHU DIXIT, musician

The industry is generally good, and it's only a few bad apples that spoil the scene for everyone. I can't remember the last time a show was cancelled midway, because of bad acoustics. Having said that, I don't think it's out of the ordinary to have such issues, but it takes a certain kind of ethics to ensure the smooth running of such events. Bengaluru has been historically the favoured city for international acts coming to India. We've had so many bands come and perform here over the last year. But with such a high-profile event being held, there needs to be meticulous planning. For instance, the gates should have been opened earlier, the organisers should have coordinated with traffic police to ensure a smooth flow of traffic, not just for the people attending the event, but for everyone else in the city. This event was held within just a few months of it being announced, that's not enough time. I'm already preparing for some of my concerts that will be held next year. You need at least six months of preparation.

SHANKAR CHUGANI, comedian

It was a perfect storm of unfortunate moments – horrible management, bad traffic – that led to the show's cancellation. Especially since Bengaluru is such a cosmopolitan city with an excellent comedy scene, having someone like Trevor Noah perform here would have been amazing. It's especially embarrassing that this happened at a tech city that played a pivotal role in landing a rover on the moon. And it's not like the city doesn't have enough number of good auditoria, suitable for shows. Even Noah himself must have been very disappointed with the state of things, as he had had a great show in Delhi and he must have thought everything would run smoothly. But the organisers probably took a gamble which backfired horribly by hosting it at Manpho. I hope this experience doesn't lead to international artistes reconsidering coming here. But the opposite might also happen. This could serve as a lesson and people might step up their game and more and more artistes might come to the city.

PRATHIBHA PRAHLAD, dancer and festival director, Delhi International Arts Festival

I've been organising cultural shows for decades now and I know personally that India has woefully inadequate infrastructure that can be classified as world-class. There are probably only a handful of places in the country, including Chowdiah Memorial Hall and Srihari Khoday Centre for Performing Arts in Bengaluru that can handle such events. Apart from these, artistes will have to deal with all kinds of stages that often don't meet the basic technical requirements. Personally, when I was organising an Italian opera performance during the Delhi International Arts Festival a decade ago, I faced a similar situation. The auditorium we had booked wasn't up to our standards and we had to supplement the facilities with external help. However, the organisers, in this case, are absolutely at fault for the events that transpired. I had never heard of Manpho before and a literal convention centre is not the right place to hold such a high-profile standup performance.

Exhibition on mapping to be held on Sept 30

The city you grew up in or the space you lived in has a strong connection and emotion. When we frequently visit a place or navigate it on a daily basis, we develop muscle memory of that space which helps us map it in our minds. City-based visual artist Sareena Khemka, uses those memories to create maps. Khemka, whose current practice explores urban spaces through ideas of different emotions, will be holding a workshop titled Drawing Spaces at the Museum of Art and Photography (MAP) on Sept 30, about the intricacies of mapping. "It's about creating pictorial maps of places you have been to, places you want to go to which combines actual imagery with imagination and memory," says Khemka.

SOMETIMES I miss the influx of performing arts in our ooru. Dance and song shows, art shows, book and poetry reading and a myriad of other such soul uplifting activities. When they do come, they leave in a nano-second, unsung and unheard of because of our abysmal infrastructure, the traffic snarls and lack of venues. Whoever has dared to bring a big show into our city has devoted an enormous amount of time untangling snafus. Any type of reconnaissance would have laid bare Bengaluru's repeated faux-pas with handling bigger events. We have repeatedly pulled a boner (to put it politely), and neither the government nor the citizens seem to care. We take on the chin like polite troopers while the 'powers that be' know that our tempers cool quickly in our cool climate. It takes an incident like this (really a shame of mega proportions) when an artist cancels all his shows and the hapless citizens who paid an arm and a leg for a raison d'etre to laugh had to wend their way home (a cool 21/2 hour trek one way) disappointed.

The venue was a make-shift job with plastic chairs, in a make-shift structure with (a cardinal sin at a talk-show) pathetic acoustics! The toilet facilities were all but non-existent and filthy, the food and liquor stalls exorbitantly priced, and the hospitals will make a killing with dengue cases because of the swarm of mosquitoes that prevailed! Being an artiste myself, I know that the first place to reconnaissance would be the venue and one must arrive early to complete a sound-check. Well, Trevor Noah apparently believed his organisers and ultimately, he plaintively said: "this has never, ever happened before!" I have spoken to a lot of people who despairing spoke of traffic-snarls and with no metro facilities available so one could take a train instead of one's car contributing to more traffic mashups. This catastrophe was waiting to happen, and we should stop being silent victims. I allure to the fact that these 'views' are mine but they echo the views of other hard-working and law-abiding citizens too. We cannot keep justifying the death of our beloved city by saying 'we have fabulous weather'. Wake-up my beloved tech-city!

In contrast I attended a small stand-up show by the mature Mumbai-based comic Atul Khatri, partnered by the Grand Mercure, Gopalan Mall. The show started on time, and the food and ambrosia were free flowing and spot-on. There was no service during the performance unlike the great drunken debacle at Manpho. The only problem was battling this horrendous malady (traffic) to reach there. Thanks to the efforts of the GM Sachin Maheshwari, was the event a resounding success. Maybe it was a much smaller show but logistically managed wonderfully. The problem arises when the organisers let their greed take over with only an eye on the money.

Thank God for my good friend chef Vikas Seth. His recent travels to South-East Asia culminated in a fab new menu at Sanchez which is literally an exquisite culinary travelogue coinciding with their 9th anniversary. His epicurean genius transcends the ordinary to make every single dish into a gastronomical delight. He isn't a mere cuisinier but a culinary genius. His fare has to be enjoyed and cannot be described.

MIXOLOGY
Kamalesh Meshak
The writer is mixologist, Long Boat Brewing Co

AS the festive season approaches and temperatures start coming down, there's nothing like a warm or a hot cocktail to infuse warmth and comfort into an evening, and also to imbibe the celebratory atmosphere. Hot cocktails have been around for centuries, and their delightful flavours and aromas are sure to warm the cockles of many a heart.

One of the most classic hot cocktails is the hot toddy. This simple-yet-soothing drink combines whiskey or brandy, or rum with hot water, honey, cinnamon, sometimes cloves, and a touch of lemon juice. Its steamy, fragrant qualities make it perfect for alleviating cold symptoms or simply winding down after a long day.

For a hot cocktail that packs a punch, look no further than a spiked apple cider. Combining warm apple cider with spiced rum, cinnamon sticks, and a dash of nutmeg, this cocktail is deceptively potent. Of course, who can forget the classic Irish coffee? A blend of Irish whiskey, dark coffee, sugar, and a generous topping of cream or whipped cream is an unforgettable way to spend a chilly evening.

For those with a sweet tooth, the hot chocolate martini is an irresistible choice. A blend of rich hot cocoa, vodka, and creme de cacao, garnished with whipped cream and chocolate shavings, this cocktail is like dessert in a glass. It's the ideal treat for indulging in some self-care or impressing your guests at a winter gathering.

So, whatever your preference, be it a potent cocktail or one that is sweet, there's a hot cocktail to warm up to.

CHETTINAD cuisine, one of the most renowned cuisines of Tamil Nadu, is linked to a community called Nattukottai Chettiar (Nagarathar) from the Chettinad (Sivagangai) region. History tells us that Nagarathars who initially lived around the modern day Poompuhar relocated inland to the hot, dry and arid Sivagangai region due to natural calamities. The Chettiars didn't stop there and as traders and mercantile bankers, they started to travel and trade with Malabar region, Calcutta, Ceylon (Sri Lanka), Burma and Malay states (Malaysia, Singapore). The explorations brought changes in their lifestyle, food and economy. The Chettiars who were traditionally vegetarians were introduced to meat, fish, pepper, red rice and spices because of their life beyond the Chettinad. Their proximity with the Britishers and westernisation of their palate gave birth to the Butler cuisine (Anglo Indian-British food with Indian spices), a forerunner of modern day fusion food. Dishes like mutton chops, mulligatwany soup and cutlets are examples. In addition to accumulating wealth, local spices and food habits, the Chettiars also help to boost the economy by contributing to the paddy cultivation in Burma, reviving coffee plantations in Sri Lanka and so on.

Chettinad food is an amalgamation of both subtle and strong flavours. The ancient Tamil saying 'One is lucky to eat like a Chettiar' is happily vouched for by the community. A typical Chettinad meal is cooked by a set of cooks under the watchful supervision of aachis and is served on a banana leaf. The dishes are served in a clockwise direction, in odd numbers. Each spicy dish is interspersed with a subtly flavoured dish to cool the system. Spicy dishes give way to the piquancy of a sour tamarind curry. Hence, there is a progression of flavours and this gives the diner an unforgettable gastronomic experience.

The traditional Chettinad dishes mostly use locally sourced spices like kalpasi (stone flower), fennel seeds, Marathi moggu and pepper that impart a unique flavour. The adoption of foreign techniques for preservation, including sun drying for meat and vegetables, pickling in brine, has enriched their culinary repertoire. The aachis oversee the careful roasting and grinding of spices, in stone grinders, chopping of vegetables with aruvamanai and every kitchen in a Chettiar home is equipped with olden day equipment like aatukal, ammikal, yanthiram, ulakkai and kunthani. A typical meal includes a varuval like baby potato roast, a kootu (lentil curry), urundai, masiyal (mash), mandi (curry), kolambu like paruppu urundai kulambu, rasam, dangar chutney which are served with rice and palagaarams (appam or paniyaram).

The non-vegetarian dishes include nandu rasam, mutton uppukari, chicken pepper masala, kadai roast. Surprisingly, there is no such dish called Chettinad chicken as it is an adaptation of their pepper chicken. Multiple traditional sweets like ukkarai, kavuniarisi and Butler desserts like bread and butter pudding and mousse provide a sweet ending to a Chettinad feast.

A UNIQUE LOVE JOURNEY THAT EXPLORES UNUSUAL BONDS

BAANADARIYALLI
Director: Preetham Gubbi
Cast: Ganesh, Rukmini Vasanth, Rangayana Raghu, and Reeshma Nanaiah

A SHARADHAA

LOVE is a heart-shaped beacon that effortlessly crosses borders and linguistic barriers in Ganesh's film, Baanadariyalli. Director Preetham Gubbi, who is known for crafting romantic dramas, delivers a film that stands out from typical love stories. Written by cinematographer Preetha Jayaraman, the film underscores its distinctiveness, by weaving a tale that diverges from the ordinary offering a fusion of suspense, pain, and adventure, all intricately intertwined into this cinematic tapestry. The film is definitely a notable departure from Ganesh-Preetham's earlier works.

First and foremost, when you hear the name Baanadariyalli, Puneeth Rajkumar immediately comes to mind. His soulful rendition of the song Baanadaariyali Surya Jarihodha, adds a special touch to the overall story, and the film.

The storyline revolves around Vasu (Rangayana Raghu), and his daughter Leela (Rukmini Vasanth), who share a dream of travelling to an African Safari. Siddhu (Ganesh), a cricket player with dreams of joining a state cricket team, accidentally meets Leela when she is on the road protesting to save trees. He falls in love with her, at the very first-sight, and after some initial meetings, Leela reciprocates to his feelings. The only condition is winning her father's approval for their marriage. After much pressure, Vasu reluctantly agrees to Siddhu's proposal. Just when love is in the air and the couple is about to tie the knot, an unexpected twist shatters Vasu's and Siddhu's dreams. The rest of the story explores whether Siddhu can fulfil Leela's wish and delves into the bond between Vasu and Siddhu, along with the addition of a friendly traveller, Kadambari.

Baanadariyalli envelopes viewers in a whirlwind of emotions, especially during the engaging first half, which keeps you smiling with its clever one-liners delivered by Ganesh, and by Ashok Sharma, who plays his brother. The film takes an unexpected turn at the interval, beautifully exploring the aftermath of heartbreak. What makes this love story unique is the rare and unusual bonding between two people, all set against a backdrop of sports and travel. The picturesque African landscapes and wildlife add an extra layer of charm to the visuals, and one can see an effort from cinematographer, Abhilash Kalathi, adding to the film's appeal. Arjun Janya has tried to blend in different kinds of songs, but they don't linger in your mind.

Although the second half may have benefited from a faster pace, the last 30 minutes offer an emotional journey that will resonate with the audience. The highlights of the movie are the performances of Ganesh, Rangayana Raghu, and Rukmini Vasanth. Ganesh, portraying a cricketer, shines when he delivers comedy, performing romance, and especially in emotional scenes. His on-screen chemistry with Rukmini is compelling. Rangayana Raghu excels in emotionally charged sequences, leaving a lasting impression. The scenes between Ganesh and Rangayana Raghu steal the spotlight. Rukmini Vasanth, in varied shades, as a doting daughter, a lover, and a surfer reaffirms her acting prowess. Reeshma Nanaiah's presence adds a charm, and she gives a lighter touch in the second half of the emotionally charged story.

While there are a few shortcomings, Baanadariyalli is an overall family-friendly movie. For those who appreciate the complexities of love, relationships and the emotional journey between people in love, Baanadariyalli is quite the perfect watch.

TOTAPURI CHAPTER 2
Director: Vijaya Prasad
Cast: Jaggesh, Dhananjay, Aditi Prabhudeva, Veena sundar, Suman Ranganath, and Hema Dutta

A fitting conclusion to the film that espouses love, laughter and unity

A SHARADHAA

DIRECTOR Vijaya Prasad's Totapuri Chapter 1 (September 2022) dealt with a pressing societal issue while weaving elements of humour into its narrative, and offered a genuine and thought-provoking parody of caste, religion, and faith. The film delved into profound philosophical musings on how these elements are increasingly obstructing peaceful coexistence. Even though Chapter 2 gets a delayed release, a year later, the content still resonates with society's unchanging realities.

The character roster is as diverse and intriguing as the film's themes. There's Ere Gowda (Jaggesh), a farmer and tailor with a penchant for stitching blouses with Totapuri designs; Shakeela Banu (Aditi Prabhudeva), a banker; Donne Biriyani Rangamma (Veena Sundar), the spirited owner of a military hotel; and Nanjamma (Hema Dutta), Ere Gowda's loyal assistant. In the midst of life's grand tapestry, the carefree spirits of Ere Gowda and his companions radiate an infectious enthusiasm for life. Their interactions are akin to fireworks, with some fun punchlines, double entendre dialogues, and occasionally evoking emotions from the audience.

Chapter 1 left us with the introduction of Victoria's and Narayan Pillai's characters, played by Suman Ranganath and Dhananjay, whose stories continue in Chapter 2 of Totapuri, where the narrative takes an intriguing turn leading to a tale of love that unfolds between these two characters. Amid daily events steeped in religious practices and discussions, the film delicately explores the intersections of religion, caste, and unity, all while beautifully portraying the love between Victoria and Narayan Pillai. Victoria's initial rejection of Narayan's advances, her decision to become a nun, and her eventual pursuit of Narayan add layers of depth to the story.

The film skillfully weaves these intricate narratives into the backdrop of temples, churches, and travel, where each individual of different faith coexists without discussing religion. Instead, their personal stories take centre stage, creating a captivating tapestry of human experiences. The humour in the film is enhanced by the witty exchanges and conversations between characters. There is also Victoria and Narayana Pillai's love story, coupled with the romantic melodies of Baharo... by Mohammed Rafi, which infuses the film with a touch of romantic madness. Chapter 2 also provides a conclusion to Shakeela Banu's love for Ere Gowda, revealing how the latter confesses his one-time mistake while expressing his genuine feelings and both decide to spend their lives together.

While Vijaya Prasad's bold and audacious film does rely heavily on double entendres, which come across as daring, provocative, and unapologetically truthful, it does manage to elicit laughter. There are a few scenes that incorporate some light moments like Victoria's dance and Rangamma's scooter ride, and Jaggesh's punches. The subtle nods to Vijaya Prasad's previous work, Neerdose, sparks discussions about a potential multiverse of his films.

Totapuri Chapter 2 adds even more complexity to the narrative, concluding with the structured concept of 'Sambhavana Samabalu Samapalu,' which reflects Dr. BR Ambedkar's ideas about equality and serves as a solution to contemporary issues.

Director Vijayaprasad, known for addressing critical issues with a dose of humour in his previous films, continues this trend in the Totapuri series too. The film's narrative not only highlights the pressing issue of caste and religion hindering peaceful coexistence but does it through a blend of humour, philosophy, and introspection.

RATING 3/5

In terms of acting, without a doubt, Jaggesh delivers a powerful performance, confidently showcasing his strengths. While he aces on the comic front, he also leaves an indelible mark in the serious scenes. While Veena Sundar's bold performance takes the cake, Aditi Prabhudeva's innocence shines through. Suman Ranganath's portrayal of Victoria is exceptional, and so is Hema Dutta's timely act. Once in a while, Dhananjay enjoys experimenting with unconventional characters, and his role as Narayan Pillai gives him that opportunity.

Totapuri is a cinematic journey that skillfully combines laughter, deep societal reflections, and a message of unity, reminding us that building a nation requires not only bricks but also hearts coming together in harmony, giving a fitting conclusion to the series.
